Q:

My son is an athlete. What are the best essential oils for him?

A:

Exercise and competitive sports are two areas in which dōTERRA has recently taken a great interest, partnering with several athletic facilities to bring the benefits of essential oils to athletes. Athletic activity can be very demanding on the body and the mind, and our new Athlete's Kit was developed to address these specific concerns. Deep Blue® Rub is perfect to massage into the lower back after a tough game, dōTERRA Breathe helps maintain feelings of clear airways, and the individual oils contained within the kit have a multitude of energizing, relaxing, and cleansing benefits. When used daily, these essential oil-based products can help athletes perform at their best.

What is internal use?

The term 'internal use' is often used to refer to any method of consumption that results in ingestion and absorption into the digestive tract. That is usually what is meant when dōTERRA refers to internal use of its products. To be more specific, though, internal application differs from oral use in that it involves consuming essential oils in a carrier such as a softgel or vegetable capsule. Once ingested and absorbed into the digestive tract, the essential compounds can be systematically circulated. It is generally considered the most powerful application method, but it is safe and can have remarkable benefits as long as proper usage guidelines are followed. For more information about proper usage models and the benefits of internal use, visit our recent series of articles on doterrascienceblog.com.

Are there any essential oils that can be helpful with a cleanse?

Minimizing toxic load is one of the most overlooked aspects of overall well-being. While dōTERRA has a line of nutritional supplements specifically designed to address this issue, there are a number of essential oils that can make the process even more effective. Lemon essential oil, commonly used for internal cleansing, is already included in our Cleanse & Restore Kit; a drop in 4 ounces of liquid creates a refreshing drink that is perfect for any detox program.* There are several other essential oils that can similarly be added to water or your favorite beverage to aid internal cleansing. Peppermint, Juniper Berry, and Rosemary can also naturally support the body's cleansing systems, including the digestive and urinary tracts.*

How can a diffuser be used to help me sleep?

One of the best uses for a diffuser is to create a relaxing environment for a restful sleep. Essential oils can influence better sleep in a myriad of ways: helping you relax, encouraging feelings of calmness, and grounding your emotions so that you can use that time to fully rejuvenate. As we all have unique aromatic experiences, the key is to find the individual oils that work best for you. Lavender is the most commonly used oil at nighttime, but while most people put it on their pillow or on the collar of their pajamas, it is also great to diffuse. I also recommend diffusing Spearmint, Ylang Ylang, Coriander, Clary Sage, and other individual oils known for their relaxing aromas as you begin your bedtime routine.

PATCHOULI

Distillation Method: Steam

Sourcing Origin: Indonesia

Plant Part: Leaf

A lesser known oil, Patchouli is often overlooked because of its strong and unique scent. This, however, does not take away from its many positive benefits. A member of the mint family, Patchouli's musky-sweet and earthy aroma makes it a great base for floral blends. It is also a wonderful addition to woody and grounding blends, and can help bring balance to your favorite citrus blend. Scientifically known as Pogostemon cablin, the patchouli plant has been used most prevalently in the fragrance industry and in other scented products such as soaps, detergents, and air fresheners.

HOW TO USE

Aromatically

- ◆ Use three to four drops in the diffuser of your choice.
- ◆ Diffuse alone or with woody aromas for a grounding blend to balance your emotions.

Internally

- ◆ Historically used to help reduce appetite,* support healthy circulation,* and to freshen breath. Consume one drop in 4 fl. oz. of liquid.

Topically

- ◆ Add to daily moisturizer to help reduce the appearance of wrinkles and blemishes.
- ◆ Apply to dry areas to help reduce the effects of dry skin.
- ◆ Dilute and use as a deodorant.
- ◆ Use with Peppermint and massage into neck after a long day of work.

KEY BENEFITS

- ◆ Promotes a smooth and glowing complexion
- ◆ Helps reduce the appearance of blemishes
- ◆ Strong grounding and balancing effect on emotions

Fun Fact

Patchouli's scent is most recognized from its prevalence in the 60s and 70s, when patchouli incense was often used to help mask other smells.

A guide to a clean and healthy mouth

Dr. David Steuer, DMD, MMSc

Throughout history, experts relied on windows into our health: the eyes to check on the soul, the mouth to gauge strength and longevity. Animals were bought and sold based on this window philosophy. Today, as in ancient times, the windows are more relevant than ever. There is mounting research to show that the overall health of your mouth does in fact mirror or represent the condition and health of your body. This research shows that maintaining a healthy oral cavity may be linked to overall long-term health and quality of life.

THE HEART AND MOUTH CONNECTION

According to the American Dental Association and the American Medical Association, there is a relationship between the condition of the gums and the condition of the cardiovascular system. Gum health is primarily a result of oral care, personal habits, and, to an extent, genetics. With appropriate effort and proper hygiene, threats to the health of our gums can be eliminated or controlled. However, failure to maintain gum health has other health consequences. Sub-optimal conditions of the heart can be traced to unhealthy gums, underscoring how important oral health care is.

HABITS OF GOOD ORAL HEALTH

Knowing that the oral cavity both reflects our bodies' condition and impacts our physical health, it is imperative that we make a daily habit of a few simple, proactive maintenance measures.

So what do we do? First, let's assume that we have all made the decision to reduce or nearly eliminate processed sugar. When you eat food or drink beverages containing sugar or starch, your mouth becomes acidic for 20 minutes or more, creating a threat to gums and teeth. Second, we have made the decision to eat healthy balanced meals, incorporating healthy fats, lean proteins, complex carbohydrates, rough foliage, and low sugar fruits and vegetables, thus reducing food sources that compromise our oral health, creating a more healthy environment for the mouth.

IS THERE A TIME THAT'S BEST TO BRUSH YOUR TEETH?

The American Dental Association recommends brushing your teeth twice a day. One of those times should be at bedtime, because if certain foods and drinks sit in your mouth for an extended duration they will create a serious threat to gums and teeth. Keep a toothbrush at work to brush after eating. Place two drops of dōTERRA On Guard® on the bristles, and massage them into the teeth and gums. Brush your tongue while including dōTERRA On Guard, Cinnamon, or Peppermint to promote clean and crisp breath. Toothpaste that is designed to neutralize low pH and freshen breath is excellent. To promote cleanliness try adding 3-4 drops of Melaleuca (Tea Tree) essential oil, or dōTERRA On Guard and Spearmint on the toothbrush before adding your toothpaste.

Kids' mouth guards are usually quite dirty. Try soaking the mouth guard in cool water with 5 drops of dōTERRA On Guard and Peppermint.

Floss at least once a day.

Flossing removes food debris and plaque from between your teeth and in areas your toothbrush can't reach. Try soaking your floss in a small cup with warm salt water and Melaleuca, then rinse with the mixture for increased cleanliness.

Following dental work, rinse with the warm salt water and essential oil rinse. The rinse will soothe the gums and promote a clean fresh mouth.

Chew only sugarless gum

(preferably one with xylitol). Chewing gum stimulates saliva, buffering the pH of the mouth, and reducing plaque.

Swish with a mouth rinse.

Try making your own: add 2 teaspoons of salt to 4 cups of warm water and mix well. Let cool if desired, then add 5 or more drops each of Melaleuca, dōTERRA On Guard, Cinnamon, and Peppermint and 2 or more drops of Clove. Rinse for 30 seconds two times per day. This rinse is also an easy "at work remedy" for the dreaded post lunch smelly breath—your coworkers will thank you! Be sure to drink plenty of water, not coffee, soft drinks or alcohol, which can lead to a drier mouth. Remember, most flavored waters contain sugar, so water is always best.

Good personal health depends on our choices and our knowledge. Incorporating a few simple steps into our routines will promote a healthier mouth, a brighter smile, and cleaner breath.

SLIM, SASSY & STRONG DO ANYWHERE EXERCISE ROUTINE

You don't need a gym full of machines to get an amazing workout, the most effective exercises are those that use several muscle groups synergistically to mimic real world movements that you can do with nothing, but a fixed surface...such as the ground.

All movement is initiated through your body's "core": your hips, glutes, and supporting abdominal musculature. Whether bending down to pick up your child's toy or lifting a heavy box above your head, those muscles are crucial. You are not going to build that slim, sassy, and strong core and lower body by sitting on a machine. For those of us itching to experience some sun and fresh air after a winter stuck inside, the world is your gym and the ground is your equipment.

EXERCISE PLAN TO A STRONG LOWER BODY

Do each exercise for 30 seconds at high intensity. Complete each movement uninterrupted before moving on to the next, in a circuit fashion. Rest for 30 seconds (or as long as needed) after completing the entire circuit and repeat two more times. As you become stronger and the routine becomes less challenging, increase intensity by incorporating added resistance via a weight vest or dumbbells. Do this twice a week as part of your full-body exercise plan.

1. SQUAT JUMPS

WORKS QUADRICEPS, GLUTES, AND HAMSTRINGS

Stand with feet shoulder-width apart and place your hands behind your head as if you were in a crunch position on the ground. Keep the chest up and your arms in place, and squat down as low as you can (remember form: sit back and keep the knees in line with your toes). Explode up into a jump, getting your feet off the ground as much as possible. Land in a squat position and repeat.

2. STEP UP

WORKS GLUTES AND MULTIPLANAR BALANCE

You'll need a platform of some kind, a park bench is perfect. Place one foot on the platform. Stand on the platform by extending the hip and knee of the first leg, and place second foot on the bench. Step down with the second leg. Return to the original standing position by placing the first foot on the floor. Repeat first step with opposite leg, alternating steps between legs.

3. LATERAL LUNGE

WORKS GLUTES, HAMSTRINGS, AND ADDUCTORS

Stand with your feet shoulder-width apart, place your hands on your hips. Step out to the right and shift your body weight over the lead (right) leg, making sure to squat at a 90 degree angle. Sit back, initiating the movement with your glutes, keeping your back as upright as possible. Push off and bring your right leg back to center, completing one rep. You can alternate legs or finish all reps on one side before repeating on the other side to complete one set.

4. GLUTE BRIDGE

WORKS GLUTES, HAMSTRINGS, AND ABDOMINAL STABILITY

Lie flat on the floor with hands by your side and knees bent. Keep your feet shoulder-width apart. Pushing your heels against the floor; lift your hips while keeping your back straight. Hold at the top.

Consult with a health-care provider before engaging in any fitness program.

YOUR SLIM, SASSY, & STRONG BODY NUTRITION PLAN

As the adage goes: you can't out-train a bad diet. Building a lean and strong body begins in the kitchen. Losing body fat while maintaining lean muscle mass requires a diet focused on whole nutrient-dense foods, ensuring you meet your micro and macronutrient needs, while staying satiated and maintaining energy levels.

HEALING HANDS FOUNDATION:

Wellness Advocates Serve Carry the Future

Motivated to Do

As a mom of two, Cristal Munoz-Logothetis couldn't get out of her head the image of the Syrian toddler who washed up on a Turkish beach after his family attempted to flee their home to seek asylum in Greece. Cristal decided she had to do something about it. Her husband's family lives in Greece, so Cristal set up an online campaign to raise $2,500 and 100 baby carriers to send there. Her plan was to have her family give them out to the refugees that had to carry their young children with them on their miles-long journey. In 72 hours, her campaign had gone viral. Today, her campaign, called Carry the Future, has had more than 6,000 carriers donated and raised more than $100,000.

dōTERRA Wellness Advocate Tasha Oakley from Lubbock, Texas, was invited by a friend to get involved with Carry the Future. A mother herself, Tasha was eager to support the cause. After attending the dōTERRA convention in 2012, Tasha learned about the dōTERRA Healing Hands Foundation™ and the company's mission to help those in need. She decided to enlist support from dōTERRA for Carry the Future. dōTERRA agreed to match up to $1,000 raised for baby carriers and to donate $500 of the dōTERRA product of their choice to benefit the Syrian refugees in Greece.

Restoring Hope in Athens

Last November, Tasha was able to go with a group of nine people to Athens to deliver baby carriers to the refugees. Each volunteer brought four 50-pound suitcases filled with vacuum-sealed carriers. Tasha says, "We met the refugees at a port in Athens, and a lot of their faces looked like they had lost all hope." The volunteers had learned a few phrases in Arabic to tell the refugees that they were giving them a free carrier from the United States and then showed them how to use it. A lot of people were skeptical at first that they were going to be ripped off, but once a few carriers were passed out and the refugees saw that they really were free, they became more receptive. Tasha says, "After we fit them with a carrier, they would walk off with a little glimmer of hope in their eyes."

Once in Athens, Tasha and her group hardly slept. She says, "We always knew that there was another ferry coming in that could have up to 1,500 refugees on it and 30 percent of those were going to be children under the age of five. We knew they could all get a carrier and how much better their life would be once they had it." They were able to hand out about 200 carriers a day. Several more trips are scheduled throughout the year, and a group is forming in Greece that can receive carriers that are mailed over as well.

The volunteers also try to bring some toys and stuffed animals that they can hand out to the children, since these families have lost everything. In order to get into the rubber rafts on the Turkish border, the families are charged $1,000 a person and are told they have to dump all of their belongings into the ocean in order to make room for more people on the rafts. One eight-year-old girl told Tasha she had come home from school one day to find her entire street reduced to rubble. Her dad told her they would have to leave, so the little girl walked over to where her bedroom had been and found one toy, and that was all she took with her.

Other families told stories of losing loved ones when their rafts capsized on their way across. Tasha also saw an eight-day-old baby with vernix caseosa still on her skin because she hadn't ever had her first bath. Her mother had delivered her on the side of the road and continued to walk for miles postpartum. Tasha says, "They're humans; we're humans. They're just people trying to start their lives over, and we just need to help."

PEPPERMINT OIL

FROM THE PACIFIC NORTHWEST

Though dōTERRA isn't digging any wells or building any schools for peppermint farmers in the Pacific Northwest, our Peppermint sourcing is still making an important impact through facilitating family legacies to continue for future generations.

Finding Peppermint

Peppermint was one of the first five essential oils that dōTERRA offered, along with Lavender, Lemon, Melaleuca, and Frankincense. But, the journey to find the right Peppermint oil was a little more complicated. Dozens of samples of Peppermint essential oil came in, but each was rejected because they didn't meet dōTERRA's high quality standard. Eventually, Emily Wright called an old colleague—Dr. Robert Pappas—and asked for his help. He put Emily in contact with growers that he knew were producing superior quality oil and who also cared that their product would be doing good in the world. Emily says, "When we contacted those growers, they got really excited that they could provide us peppermint in the way it's supposed to be grown, in its natural state, and for a good price. Beyond that, they were excited that it was also going into the hands of people who will use it for a variety of health benefits."

A Beneficial Partnership

This partnership has now spread to other farmers in the Pacific Northwest and other parts of the world as dōTERRA, and the demand for Peppermint oil, have grown. One of the original partners has been in the industry for four generations. His ancestors emigrated from Germany and started growing mint to support their family. They still grow that same mint on the same farms today. But, before their partnership with dōTERRA, the fourth generation had actually left the farm to find work elsewhere. The income on the farm was not enough to support their families. Now, thanks to dōTERRA, that fourth generation has been able to come back.

Emily says, "Guaranteeing purchase of the Peppermint oil that they could produce each year, and giving them a good price, made it beneficial to bring their sons back and carry the family legacy forward."

The Ideal Region

The Pacific Northwest is ideal for peppermint because of the high amounts of rainfall they have each year. This gives the peppermint a high menthol content, which gives it its sweet, minty aroma and flavor. Emily says, "All the natural elements in this region are conducive to producing a high quality Peppermint oil."

The area is also highly conducive to growing roman chamomile, a plant that can be difficult to cultivate given its sensitivity to fluctuations in weather conditions. dōTERRA is now working with peppermint growers to introduce roman chamomile to their fields with great success. This step is vital to making Roman Chamomile essential oil more available in the future.

“From the soil to the distillery, each farmer takes the time and effort to ensure that their Peppermint oil meets quality standards so they can feel confident as it goes from their hands to yours.”

DON'T LET THE BUGS BUG YOU THIS SPRING

By: Jeff Dorsett, MSHS

GAME ON. As we leave winter behind us and approach spring, many of us are yearning to get outdoors, to breathe fresh air, and to once again feel the warmth of the sun. For the more sports-minded, spring is a perfect time for getting back to shooting some hoops, working on your pass, or hitting the green. Yes, spring has something to offer all of us. Spring is also a time when mosquitoes and other insects begin to feed. As the swarms descend, we scurry to our cabinets or first aid kits to find the long forgotten, often synthetic, chemical-based repellents, in hopes of warding off the feeding frenzy. However, there are several safety concerns related to both environmental and human health, with the use of synthetic chemicals to control insects and other pests.¹ Therefore, now is a good time to brush up on the benefits of essential oils and their repelling properties. Just like preparing for a sport or other outdoor activity, protecting oneself from pests requires knowledge and planning.

The Best Offense Is a Good Defense

Arguably, no defense is better than Mother Nature's offerings. Nature has granted every living organism unique abilities and mechanisms to fight for its continued survival.¹ For example, to ensure our continued survival, humans have the ability to run, hide, or fight when presented with an immediate threat. Had we lacked these basic abilities throughout history, our species would have ceased to exist. The same is true for other mobile creatures. But what about nature's less mobile inhabitants (e.g. plants) that lack such defensive mobility? How have they survived for millennia without these abilities?

Survival of the Fittest

Because they are stationary, all plants have developed some sort of physical and/or chemical adaptation that offer protection from environmental threats. Many plants have thorns, barbs, or spines (think rose stems, cactus, stinging nettle, etc.) that physically deter larger animals from consuming or damaging them. Although these physical adaptations offer a barrier of protection against larger animals, such defensive physical features have little effect in deterring smaller threats, like insects. For the smaller defense, many plants naturally produce chemical repellents and feeding deterrents. Among these are essential oils, which help prevent attacks^{2,3} in several ways, one of which is providing a vapor barrier that deters insects from contacting the plants' surface in the first place.³ In short, plants produce essential oils not to please our palate or delight our nose with a pleasant fragrance (although they do a great job with that), but to protect themselves from would-be attackers.

Hang Time

For centuries, these same essential oils have been traditionally used by native human populations throughout the world to ward off mosquitos and other insects.¹ In fact, the hanging of repellent plants throughout the home, after bruising them to release the essential oils, is still a common practice in developing countries.² Modern scientific research has validated the traditional use of essential oils as natural repellents. Many essential oils extracted from various plants have been shown to have excellent repellency properties.³ Generally, the unique combination of monoterpenes and sesquiterpenes found in these oils may contribute to their repellent properties.¹

Alpha-pinene, cineole, eugenol, limonene, terpinolene, citronellol, citronellal, camphor, thymol, and beta-caryophyllene are commonly found in essential oils that have the ability to repel mosquitoes.³⁻⁷

Working as a Team

The term "synergy," in the context of essential oils, means that often increased activity is found in the use of the whole oil rather than just one of its constituent parts. The same can be said of blends of essential oils having greater activity than that of any one of the single essential oils that make up the blend. It is easy to attribute repellency activity of an essential oil to one or two compounds; however, there is scientific support for a potential synergistic repellent effect among the various components.^{3,7,8} In fact, several studies have demonstrated that pure isolated compounds are less effective repellents than that of the essential oil in which they are found.¹⁻³ It is believed the minor constituents found in essential oils act synergistically with the major constituents, improving the overall efficacy.³ This concept of synergy is key when developing natural, essential-oil-based repellents; a product based on a mixture of whole essential oils is often more powerful than one based only on one oil or component.

Mother Nature's Playbook

Drawing upon Mother Nature's blueprint, scientists have developed insect repellent formulations (e.g. sprays, creams, gels, and lotions) based on the unique protection afforded by plant-based essential oils. Many essential oils (including Arborvitae, Cedar, Cinnamon, Citronella, Clove, Geranium, Lemongrass, Spearmint, Peppermint, Rosemary and Thyme) have known repellency properties, and are considered safe for repelling insects, when used appropriately.⁹ In choosing an essential-oil-based repellent, look for one that contains one or more of these essential oils or that share similar chemistry. Also, essential-oil-based repellents tend to lose efficacy relatively quickly—they are volatile, aromatic compounds after all. So it is important that the formula should contain a fixative ingredient, like Fractionated Coconut Oil¹⁰ to help keep the essential oil on the skin longer and thus help increase repellent efficiency. Vanilla absolute, which contains vanillin, is also a great addition to any essential-oil-based repellent, because it can also prolong efficacy.¹⁻³

This year, as you go outside and enjoy all that Mother Nature has to offer, don't let the bugs bug you. With a little pre-game planning, you can ensure that you have a great outdoor experience.

THE GAME PLAN

- 1 Common "scents" defense. Use a good essential-oil-based repellent that contains a blend of two or more essential oils with known repellency properties (see list above). Blends containing Cedar essential oil are particularly useful and provide an aroma profile that is reminiscent of nature. Additionally, the product should contain a fixative like Fractionated Coconut Oil and/or vanilla absolute, to help ensure long-lasting efficacy.
- 2 Dress for the occasion. Weather permitting, wear long sleeve shirts, pants, and socks to provide a first-line physical barrier.
- 3 Keep your eye on the clock. Mosquitoes are generally most active between the hours of dusk and dawn, so plan your day accordingly.

LIVING

the dōTERRA®
Lifestyle

Marty Harger, dōTERRA Diamond, caught the travel bug at an early age as her parents encouraged her and her siblings to be independent and explore the world. After college, she moved to Utah to ski and found herself working in the ski industry, and eventually running the country's largest ski vacation travel company. Shortly after, she married Jim, who shared her passion for world travel. She says, "Through our adventures and experiences we've seen differences and similarities in people from all over the world. We have developed an increased awareness and compassion for mankind. This attitude prepared us for what we are doing today in dōTERRA."

Inspired by past dōTERRA essential oil sourcing and service trips, Marty developed a deep desire to encourage her team to join her in exploring essential oils. She says, "I wanted to recreate the interpersonal connection and lifelong friendships I made while traveling with small groups during early dōTERRA incentive trips. I also wanted to recreate the effects of the life-changing Guatemala Healing Hands Expedition last year."

During her most recent Essential Earth Explorations trip to Costa Rica, Marty's goal was to immerse her team in all things dōTERRA. Although dōTERRA currently doesn't source any essential oils from Costa Rica, Marty chose to take her team there because of its rich nature, serene lifestyle, beautiful people, and variety of unique plants. While they were there, they focused on providing education about essential oils, conducting personal development training, and giving back to the local communities through service.

She says, "Each morning we began the day with yoga and essential oils to get centered emotionally and physically. We practiced various workshops from The Essential Yoga Program, a book I co-created, in different locations, such as a beautiful cloud forest studio and overlooking the ocean with the sounds of crashing waves and howler monkeys waking up. It was such a fantastic way to start the day in a calm and peaceful manner. We often ate meals together at a long table, family style, which was wonderful for interaction and conversation among the group."

One of their most moving experiences was the day they spent visiting the Musade Center, a job training and support center for victims of domestic violence. "We listened as translators described what these women had escaped. It was deeply touching to see how their stories mirrored those of people we knew back home, and it was inspiring to see how these women had chosen something better." After listening to these touching stories, Marty and her team were able to lead a gentle chair yoga class for the women, and to offer the AromaTouch® Hand Technique. "It was so beautiful to see how this form of safe touch and connection was enhanced by the essential oils, and even though we couldn't communicate with words, we were still able to express our support, concern, and love." For them, this trip was exploring the world together while connecting with others, and truly experiencing what dōTERRA is all about.

"If I could wave a magic wand and spend a day with each dōTERRA Wellness Advocate, I'd transport each person to the rainforests of Guatemala, the mountains of Nepal, the deserts of Somalia, and the fruit groves of Italy—and let them see for themselves the hundreds of lives who create our beautiful oils that they are connected to in these faraway lands."

Marty discovered through her experience that as you connect with the source of essential oils, you gain a deeper appreciation and understanding for them. "It's about witnessing where they come from. It's also the hands-on experience of meeting the people in the communities where essential oils originate. It's honestly so moving; it creates such deep appreciation for the gift we have with our dōTERRA oils."

Melaleuca (Tea Tree)

Distillation Method: Steam
Sourcing Origin: Australia
Plant Part: Leaf

From spring cleaning to cosmetic care, Melaleuca (Melaleuca alternifolia) is one of the most versatile essential oils. Hailing from Australia, the melaleuca plant was a daily necessity for the early natives. The Aborigines would crush the leaves and inhale the scent of the oil to promote feelings of clear breathing or apply the leaves directly to the skin for a cooling effect. As time progressed, the knowledge of melaleuca's numerous benefits spread worldwide. Also known as "tea tree" oil, Melaleuca is renowned for its cleansing and rejuvenating effect on the skin. Few people know, however, that it promotes healthy immune function* and protects against environmental and seasonal threats as well.

INTERESTING FACT

Bungawalbin Creek in Australia is surrounded by Australian tea trees and is held sacred by the Aborigines. As the sticky tea tree oil leaves fell into the creek, they created waters that natives still consider "magical healing waters" today.

The dōTERRA®

Quality Assurance Process

What is Quality Assurance?

Quality assurance (QA) is often referred to as the “police” of the manufacturing world, because some of our duties in QA make us seem like police officers. We enforce dōTERRA standards, such as CPTG Certified Pure Therapeutic Grade®. However, there are also legal requirements that we enforce throughout each stage of sourcing and bottling our oils. All of our products, whether they are foods, cosmetics, or dietary supplements, have regulatory requirements in each country where they are sold. These requirements influence and sometimes dictate the labeling, sourcing, and manufacturing processes that result in the end product. For example, the United States 21 CFR 111 (the section of the Code of Federal Regulations that governs dietary supplements), lists duties for quality. In brief, QA has the responsibility to review and approve items such as ingredient, component, and finished good specifications; procedures; manufacturing records; and equipment. This applies to dōTERRA because our internal use oils are labeled as dietary supplements.

Part of our responsibility in QA is to enforce standards and government regulations.

There are three branches of QA at dōTERRA: QA Inspectors, QA Engineers, and Document Control Specialists.

QA Inspectors

Since nothing enters or leaves the building without QA approval, you will find a QA Inspector in every process. QA Inspectors inspect every component of every batch. Before an incoming shipment can be moved into our warehouse, our QA Inspectors examine each batch of oil, labels, caps, bottles, boxes, etc. The QA Inspector then labels a raw material or component that passes as approved. QA Inspectors inspect the filling line at the start of every run, perform inspections at set intervals during the run, keep samples of every batch, verify production records, and inspect each lot of finished goods. The samples collected ensure that we have a history of the oil's appearance, odor, and taste for future reference.

What is QA's role in CPTG®?

Early in the process, Research and Development, Quality Control, and Strategic Sourcing work with QA to carefully develop and define the testing criteria for each oil and blend. The result of this definition is documented in a specification created and routed for review by Document Control. This document is used by our QC laboratories to determine which tests are needed and to evaluate if the oil passes or fails. This specification is also used by the QA Inspectors to evaluate the raw and the finished good oils. Finally, the specification is used by the QA Engineers when they review the entire file that includes the production, QC testing, and QA inspection records to determine if the product meets our standards and can be released for sale.

QA Engineers

This highly technical group has a scientific education and extensive QA experience.

QA Engineers carefully review inspection records created by QA Inspectors to confirm that a product is ready to be released.

They sign that each product meets our standards and they serve as a second set of eyes to verify our QA Inspectors have checked each detailed step in the process. They review and approve testing and changes to our equipment with our manufacturing engineers. If a Wellness Advocate reports a quality issue with one of our products, a QA Engineer investigates the complaint to continuously improve our products and processes, developing new procedures as needed. The QA Engineers also conduct internal and supplier audits, and help us maintain our third party NSF cGMP (Good Manufacturing Practices) certification. This certification requires a third party to audit our manufacturing facility every six months. As a QA team, we chose to pursue this certification because audit by a third party creates a culture of accountability. It is designed to keep us focused on meeting and exceeding our own quality standards.

What does this mean to you?

Great quality lives in the details. Our constant checks, documentation, and reviews mean that we care about the details that make our oils world class. This passionate commitment means that you can use the oils and all of our products to benefit your family with confidence. Know that we are working tirelessly to check every detail, bringing you only the very best products. You can confidently share the products with people you love, knowing that we are constantly striving to improve our products and processes. Commitment to continuous improvement means longevity. Our Quality Assurance group works to ensure that the fabulous products you enjoy will continue to be the best for years to come.

Document Control

Document Control manages the processes needed to ensure that we have "laws" that govern the definition of our standards.

We create several hundred document files, totaling thousands of individual documents per week that must be housed and updated in an organized, easily retrievable fashion. Sample document types include: specifications, formulas, Standard Operating Procedures (SOPs), batch records, label approvals, master manufacturing records, audits, investigations, maintenance and cleaning records, and equipment and room use logs. Just as it would not be possible for electricians, framers, and plumbers to build a house without a blueprint, all of the departments from sourcing to the chemists who come together to create, manufacture, and approve a finished oil need a set of "blueprints." These specifications provide order and predictability to help ensure the desired outcome. Document control gathers all of the required information in one place, obtains approvals, and then releases the specification to all affected departments. Everyone has the same standard when producing, inspecting, and testing the oils.

15 uses for dōTERRA® Fractionated Coconut Oil

No leak cap and oil dispenser

What is Fractionated Coconut Oil?

Fractionated coconut oil is, as the name suggests, Coconut oil with specific components removed. In the non-chemical fractionating process, the components of whole coconut oil that cause it to be solid at room temperature and be susceptible to oxidation are removed.

The resulting substance is liquid at room temperature and very stable.

Fractionated Coconut Oil provides a number of advantages over whole coconut oil, primarily increased shelf-life. Unlike whole coconut oil, Fractionated Coconut Oil can withstand light and high heat without going rancid. It is also lighter, non-greasy, and has a greater cleansing effect on the skin, making it popular as a carrier for essential oils and as a base for a variety of skin care products.

Benefits

- ◆ Longer shelf life
- ◆ Less greasy and has a lightweight texture

Make Over Your Cleaning Routine

Safe, natural, and just in time for your annual spring cleaning.

WHY GREEN CLEAN?

- Safe for you and your family
- Easy on the pocket
- Highly effective
- Environmentally friendly

FACTS

- Many household cleaners contain toxic chemicals. These chemicals may cause short-term and long-term health problems when you use them.¹
- Children are often more vulnerable to chemical exposure during developmental stages, and certain chemicals may interfere with the development of their neurological, endocrine, and immune systems.²

Main route of exposure:

- Eating —Breathing
- Drinking —Touching

- Younger children have higher respiratory rates than adults, therefore they absorb more air contaminants per unit of weight, meaning they experience a higher inhaled dose.²
- According to the United States Environmental Protection Agency, the air inside a typical home is 200–500 percent more polluted than the air outside mainly due to toxic household cleaning products.

No need to compromise your health, for a clean house!

MUST HAVE BASICS

BAKING SODA

- Felt sheet for ears
- Exacto knife or craft knife
- Glue gun
- Scissors
- 1 pink pipe cleaner for the tail
- Sharpie

INSTRUCTIONS:

1. Using an Exacto knife, carefully make a coin slot big enough to fit two quarters side-by-side.
2. Remove the lid and paint the bottle first, then paint the lids separately.
TIP Apply multiple thin layers of paint to achieve a brighter and more even look.
3. For the legs, glue painted essential oil bottle lids to the "belly" side of the bottle.
4. Cut out the ears from the felt sheet. Pinch the bottom of the ear piece to create a crease, then glue the crease to create an ear-like shape. Glue both ears onto the "head" as shown in the picture.
NOTE We used a darker colored felt for the interior of the ear. The interior ear piece cut-out is slightly smaller than the outside piece.
5. For the tail, cut a 4-inch piece of pipe cleaner, bend it to a spiral shape, then glue it to the back of the bottle.
6. Glue both eyes along the neck of the bottle.
7. For nostrils, draw two dots on the lid with a Sharpie.

5. GARDEN HERB POT

WHAT YOU NEED:

- Empty TrimShake containers
- Paint of choice*
- Potting soil mix
- Herb plant of choice

INSTRUCTIONS:

1. Using Lemon essential oil and a scrub sponge, remove the container label.
2. Spray paint the outside of the clean container.
TIP Apply multiple thin coats of paint, allowing each coat to dry between each application. If using spray paint, make sure to follow instructions on the bottle.
3. Once your pot is completely dry, fill it about half way with soil. With your hands, make a hole approximately 2 inches in diameter. Remove the plant out of its nursery container, gently spread its roots, and place it in the hole. Add additional soil on the edges to cover the roots.
4. Water the plant, then gently press down the soil to eliminate air pockets, add more soil if necessary, and then water again.
TIP dōTERRA On Guard® Laundry detergent containers work great for watering.
5. Punch holes in bottom of pot for water drainage.

*We used stone textured and sunrise matte colored spray paint

ERICA RILEY | Master Esthetician at the dōTERRA® Spa

How do you use essential oils in your practice or daily skin care routine? What is your favorite dōTERRA skin care product, and why?

I use oils at home every day. I use the Verage™ cleanser, toner, and moisturizer in the morning, and I use the Essential Skin Care Tightening Serum and Hydrating Cream at night. My favorite oil to use is Sandalwood. I use it for everything! I especially like to mix a few drops of Sandalwood into my Hydrating Cream at night, partly for the relaxing and grounding smell, and partly because I love how rejuvenated and healthy my skin looks when I use it. When my skin needs an extra pick-me-up, I use Juniper Berry. It works as a natural toner.

What recommendations do you have for maintaining healthy skin?

Use Sunscreen

How much time you spend in the sun with no skin protection directly correlates with how quickly your skin ages. Sunscreen is a must!

Exfoliate

Exfoliation twice a week with a good scrub is great to help maintain a smooth texture on the skin surface and creates a youthful glow from within. The Reveal System is my favorite dōTERRA Skin Care Product! I like using the Reveal Facial system on weekends and Wednesdays (a good reminder for those of us with a busy schedule!) to remove any dead skin cells from the surface of the skin to create a smooth surface for make-up application. Make sure to follow up with a good moisturizer, or a body lotion.

De-Stress

Take care of your skin by eating healthy, drinking plenty of water, getting sleep, and taking time to de-stress! It can sometimes be difficult in our busy lives, but it's very important to give yourself a "time out" and relax. Whether it's something simple, like pausing your day for five minutes to practice meditation, or having a night in and taking a warm bath, or even taking a well-earned trip to the spa, do something to de-stress your life and your skin will thank you for it.

If you are visiting dōTERRA corporate campus, don't forget to stop by the Spa to get a relaxing massage, a facial, or an AromaTouch® Technique! For more information follow dōTERRA Spa on Facebook.
