Q:

What makes Immortelle anti-aging blend so effective at reducing the appearance of fine lines and wrinkles?

A:

Immortelle is a combination of six essential oils that research has shown have powerful skin-supporting properties. Experimental research has shown that Frankincense is cleansing and can provide a radiant, youthful-looking glow when applied topically. Hawaiian Sandalwood is composed primarily of sesquiterpene alpha-santalol, which has been shown to be mildly cleansing. Lavender's combination of monoterpene esters and alcohols has been shown in experimental research to promote clear-looking skin. Myrrh essential oil has been shown in experimental research to reduce the appearance of blemishes when applied topically. Helichrysum is rich in monoterpene alpha-pinene, which has been shown to help maintain healthy-looking skin. Lastly, the rare Rose oil has a high concentration of citronellol, which experimental research has shown can be mildly cleansing and support of overall skin health. The proprietary combination of these skin health-supporting essential oils helps skin maintain a radiant and youthful luster.

How can I use essential oils to help my kids cool down after a long day in the sun?

Several essential oils, especially Peppermint, Eucalyptus, and Basil, are known to be cooling to the skin and there are many ways to take advantage of this properly. My favorite way to quickly cool the skin down is by making a cold water compress. Add 1–2 cups of cool water to a bowl, 5–10 drops of Peppermint, Eucalyptus, or Basil, and a few ice cubes. Swish the solution around with a soft cloth, wring the cloth out, and apply it to the head or neck.

We love to hike during the summer. What essential oils should always be kept in our day pack?

Think about your needs on a hike. Energy, insect repellent, seasonal threats, maybe even cooling; these are all issues which essential oils can be used to address. Peppermint is a must; just put a few drops in your palms and inhale whenever you are in need of a quick energy boost, and you can make a cooling compress in a pinch with a towel and some water. Lastly, you should have a bottle of Lavender in every bag you carry, regardless of where you are going. Apply it topically to minor skin irritations and once you reach the summit of the hike, pop the cap and inhale to relax and enjoy the view.

Besides Lavender, what other essential oils can we use to improve our bedtime routine?

We spend approximately 1/3 of our lives sleeping, and we are just beginning to discover how important sleep is for overall health. Luckily several essential oils, not just Lavender, have well-known properties that can assist with your bedtime routine. The secret behind Lavender's calming and relaxing benefits is its high concentration of monoterpenes linalool and linalyl acetate. Research has shown that inhaled linalool may promote feelings of relaxation and that when combined with linalyl acetate is very calming. Several other essential oils contain similar chemical profiles and may provide similar benefits. Try diffusing Bergamot during your wind-down bedtime routine. Put a few drops of Clary Sage on your pillow or add a few drops of Petitgrain next time you wash your bedsheets.

Grapefruit

Aromatic Description:

Citrus, floral, fruity

Distillation Method:

Cold Pressed

Plant Part:

Grapefruit rinds (peel)

The grapefruit was first documented in 1750 by Reverend Griffith Hughes in the book The Natural History of Barbados, where the name of the grapefruit was literally translated as the “forbidden fruit.” Tart and tangy with a little bit of sweetness, grapefruit was bred as a cross between a pomelo and an orange. To make one 15 mL bottle of Grapefruit essential oil, we press the peels of about 50 grapefruits.

How to use:

Aromatically

- ◆ Add three or four drops in a diffuser to promote feelings of energy and excitement.
- ◆ Add three drops of Grapefruit, one drop of Ylang Ylang, and one drop Sandalwood in a diffuser for a focusing blend.

Internally

- ◆ Add one to two drops to your water to support a healthy metabolism.*
- ◆ Add a few drops to whipped topping and make your favorite dessert even better.

Topically

- ◆ Add to your moisturizer or lotion as part of your nightly routine (avoid UV light exposure).
- ◆ With Fractionated Coconut Oil, add one or two drops on desired areas. Massage for refreshing, smooth looking skin.

Fun Fact: Grapefruits (Citrus X paradisi) were given the name because of the way they grew in cluster's similar to grapes.

EATING RIGHT

Isn't modern Big Agriculture great? With a quick trip to the corner grocery store, we have every variety of fruit and vegetable available to us, regardless of what time of year it is. Fresh blueberries in your morning oatmeal in December? Sure. Fresh grape tomatoes in dinner's salad in the dead of winter? No problem. But, unless you are buying in-season produce, fresh is a bit of misnomer. Buying fruits and vegetables while they are in season ensures that you are getting the best-tasting and most nutrient-dense foods available. For optimum health and food enjoyment, spend some time learning about the harvesting seasons.

True Meaning of Fresh

Produce not in season makes quite the trek to your local supermarket, taking anywhere from three days to several weeks, traveling on average nearly 2,000 miles. To ensure that they don't spoil along the way, fruits and vegetables are picked before they have reached full maturity, meaning they have not only yet to reach their peak aroma and taste, but nutritional content as well. Theoretically, they should ripen during transportation, but this isn't always the case. After harvesting, exposure to air, temperature changes, and artificial light all result in vitamin and mineral degradation and the necessity for more preservatives. Numerous studies have shown that produce picked at maturity and either consumed immediately or flash frozen on-site have higher levels of vital nutrients than what ends up in your grocery store display. In particular, levels of vitamin C and antioxidants are especially sensitive to early harvesting. Studies have shown that fresh vegetables can lose up to 51 percent of their vitamin C content within 48 hours of being picked. Even when stored in refrigerated environments, vegetables can lose nearly half of their water-soluble antioxidant activity within a matter of days. We buy “fresh” fruits and vegetables because of superior taste and perceived nutritional benefits, but unless it is October, that crisp Fuji apple you just took a bite out of wasn’t fresh at all. June through August, instead of baking your famous apple pie for dessert, take advantage of seasonal freshness and try peach instead. Roasted acorn squash may sound delicious, but replace it with zucchini, which is at its nutritional peak in the summer.

Season

Benefits of In-Season Produce

Along with a more pleasant aroma and taste and better nutrient profiles, in a display of Mother Nature’s brilliance, in-season produce often contains higher levels of specific constituents that are in greater need that time of year. For instance, summer fruits tend to have a higher water content so that you can meet hydration needs while enjoying the warm season weather. Watermelon and strawberries have the highest fluid content of any fruits, at approximately 92 percent water per volume, narrowly outpacing other summer fruits, such as grapefruit and cantaloupe. Similarly, summer cucumber and zucchini are nearly 96 percent water. Research has shown that refueling with summer fruits and vegetables actually rehydrates you better after a workout than drinking water or even most sports drinks thanks to the precise combination of water, amino acids, electrolytes, and vitamins that are lost through perspiration. Due to extended darkness and cold weather, we tend to need more dietary vitamin D throughout the fall and winter; not surprisingly, some of the best sources of vitamin D, such as portabella mushrooms, are at their peak in the fall. A recently published review and meta-analysis has also provided some evidence that foods high in vitamin D may support the proper function of the immune system, reducing risk for all those winter season health threats. Mother Nature knows what she’s doing.

Take advantage of the abundant summer growing season by picking up some truly fresh raspberries and sugar snap peas for the family to snack on. Your health and your taste buds will thank you.

Summer Dinner Table

Homemade Lemon Pasta

INGREDIENTS

1 cup all-purpose flour

$\frac{3}{4}$ cup semolina

Note: You can use all semolina or all purpose flour if needed.

1 teaspoon salt

1 drop Lemon oil

3 eggs

1 tablespoon olive oil

$\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon ground pepper

1 tablespoon olive oil

DIRECTIONS

1. Combine dry ingredients together.

2. Mix wet ingredients in separate bowl.

3. Form a well in the center of your dry ingredients and pour your wet ingredients inside.

4. Fold with a fork until pliable.

5. Flour your countertop and place dough on top, kneading with your hands for 10 minutes until smooth.

6. You can now use a pasta machine, or roll it out with a rolling pin and cut into strips with a pizza cutter.

7. Boil in salted water for 2 minutes.

Garden Marinara

INGREDIENTS

10 tomatoes
½ medium onion
2 cloves garlic
½ small zucchini
½ small yellow squash
1 red pepper
1 small carrot
5 basil leaves
1 teaspoon fresh rosemary
⅓ cup Italian seasoning
2 teaspoons salt
2 drops Oregano oil
1 drop Basil oil
1 toothpick Rosemary oil
½ teaspoon ground pepper
1 tablespoon olive oil

DIRECTIONS

1. Preheat oven to 350 degrees Fahrenheit.
2. Chop all vegetables in 1 inch pieces and place on a cookie sheet.
3. Mix Italian seasoning, salt, and pepper in a separate bowl, and sprinkle over the chopped vegetables.
4. Combine Oregano oil, Basil oil, Rosemary oil, and olive oil into a small bowl, and pour over vegetables.
5. Bake for 2–3 hours, or until all vegetables are soft and translucent.
6. When done, let cool, and grind up in a blender.
Note: You can add extra seasonings if needed.
7. Warm on the stove as needed.

Meatballs

INGREDIENTS

1 pound ground beef
2 eggs
2 pieces of hearty bread
1 teaspoon salt
1 drop Black Pepper oil
¼ cup cooked red quinoa

DIRECTIONS

1. Preheat oven to 350 degrees Fahrenheit.
2. Crumble bread with your hands into a bowl, then add all other ingredients, and mix.
3. Form into 2 inch balls, and put in pot with about 3-4 inches of water.
4. Place lid on the pot, and bake for 20–30 minutes, or until cooked all the way through.

Artisan Bread

INGREDIENTS

¾ cup sour dough starter
Note: You can make your own by mixing 2 cups of flour, and one cup of water. Keep in a glass container with a loosely fitted lid, and leave on counter for 8–12 hours before use.
1 ¼ cups water
3 ½ to 3 ¾ cups of all purpose flour
1 ½ teaspoons salt
1 ½ tablespoons sugar, honey, or molasses
Tip: To add an Italian flavor, add 1 drop Oregano oil and two tablespoons of Italian seasoning.

DIRECTIONS

1. Preheat oven to 425 degrees Fahrenheit.
2. Add everything to a large bowl, then squish the mixture with your hands until it is absorbed.

Note: The dough will look rough.

3. Let the dough rest for 30 minutes to an hour, then knead again.
4. Cover your bowl with a lid; leave for 3–12 hours or until it's double in size.
Note: This will depend on the temperature in your home.
5. Remove the dough from the bowl, and place on a lightly floured counter, folding in the sides until it forms a ball.
6. Place a parchment liner in an enameled dutch oven, or any pot with a lid, and put the dough inside.
7. Let it rise for 1–2 hours more.
8. If desired, carefully slice the top to allow steam to release while baking.
9. Bake for 20 minutes with lid, then remove lid and bake for 20–30 minutes more.

Note: If you are using a regular pot, it will take up to 15 minutes longer to bake.

empowering Women Worldwide

A menstruation cycle is a gift, providing life and health. But for too many women across the globe, this natural process is a source of shame and isolation. Often, girls in third-world countries put their lives on hold as they wait out and endure through their monthly cycles. Some use any means they can to manage their period by using mattress stuffing, newspaper, corn husks, and other materials as makeshift feminine hygiene products, while others are ostracized and sent away from their homes or forced to sit on cardboard until their menstruation stops. With every menstruation, these girls are forced to give up precious time, debilitating their schooling and restricting potential income-generating opportunities.

“The dōTERRA Healing Hands Foundation™ makes it possible for women to be local health leaders and to create a solution for their own communities.”—Celeste Mergens

Making A Change

In 2008, Days for Girls Founder and CEO Celeste Mergens was assisting an orphanage in Nairobi during a violent and politically torn period. As a result of the political chaos, the orphanage increased from 400 to 1,400 children. This devastating situation weighed heavily on Celeste’s mind, leading her to ask what more she could do. In the middle of the night, the thought came to her, “What are the girls doing for feminine hygiene?” The orphanage’s response? “Nothing.”

Celeste couldn’t accept that answer and eventually turned that nothing into an influential something by creating the Days for Girls Foundation. The Days for Girls Foundation empowers women every day by offering girls feminine hygiene kits, health education, and the tools to empower women across communities.

Each Days for Girls kit is made up of reusable feminine hygiene supplies that can be used for two to four years. These resources make it possible for girls and women alike to go to school and work without having to stop every month for their menstruation cycle. The organization also works to educate females on their body and health so that they know the important purpose their cycles play.

So far, Days for Girls has provided kits and education for over 64,000 women in over 100 countries. This far-reaching effort is empowering women everywhere, allowing them to see dignity instead of uncleanliness, value instead of shame, and freedom instead of isolation.

Offering Support

After hearing about the mission of Days for Girls, the dōTERRA Healing Hands Foundation™ immediately offered time and resources to aid their noble cause. Emily Wright, dōTERRA executive vice president of sales and marketing, says “When we learned that young women were using leaves, mattress stuffing, newspaper, corn husks, and other materials for feminine hygiene, we were heartbroken and knew we needed to help.”

Since the beginning of this long-term partnership, the dōTERRA Healing Hands Foundation has continually put Days for Girls at the forefront of their support. During dōTERRA’s most recent convention, the company restated its support of Days for Girls with an additional $250,000 donation. Apart from monetary donations, the dōTERRA Healing Hands Foundation strives to raise awareness in their community so that individuals anywhere can make a difference for women everywhere.

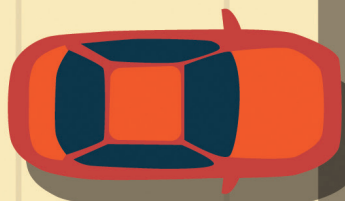

On March 8, 2017, the dōTERRA Healing Hands Foundation hosted a community-wide service day, gathering over 500 dōTERRA employees and Wellness Advocates to celebrate International Women’s Day by making kits for Days for Girls. This event produced a record-breaking 1,700 reusable feminine hygiene kits that were then packed and delivered to women in locations all over the world.

dōTERRA Vice President of corporate relations and European markets, Kirk Jowers says, “We were pleased to celebrate International Women’s Day in such a significant and meaningful way. The hygiene kits dōTERRA employees and Wellness Advocates helped create can change the trajectory of a young woman’s life and improve her long-term prospects and the prospects of her future family and community. When a girl is able to stay in school and learn, she is much more likely to be a leader in her community and to be able to help support her future family.”

GUYS GUIDE TO

Driveway Tips

Driveway cracks that are less than a quarter inch should only require a minor repair. These surface cracks can be repaired easily with liquid crack sealers. Make sure to clean the crack out with a power washer and let dry before applying your sealant.

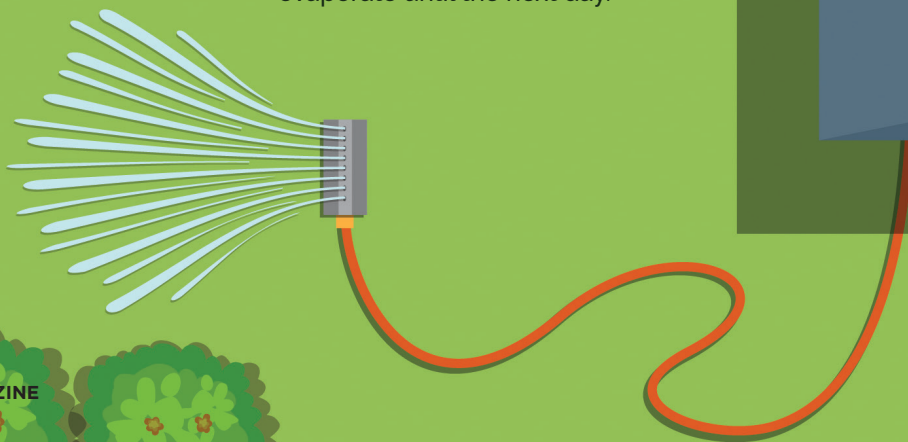

Driveway cracks that are larger than a quarter inch wide are more of an issue. Filling in those cracks will only temporarily solve the problem. Some may choose to resurface at that point, which is great for those warmer areas. As for those who have four seasons, this is yet another temporary fix. Replacing your driveway and ensuring your foundation is properly set will ensure a great driveway for years. Although not guaranteed, sealing your driveway before any cracks happen has been known to help stop cracking.

Watering Tips

Watering your yard correctly can help keep it looking strong and healthy. Early morning is one of the best times to water your yard. The water will be absorbed and soon after dry off with the morning sun. Watering in the afternoon can lead to fungus growth, because the pooling water does not evaporate until the next day.

YARD CARE

Health Tip

Prepare yourself before going out. TerraShield helps protect you from potential threats in your environment.

Maintenance Tip

Use essential oils to tune up your lawn mower and edger, and to clean tools...etc.

Multi-Purpose Cleaner

- 12 drops of any citrus essential oil
- 4 tablespoons white vinegar
- 16–20 ounces of water

Combine in a spray bottle.

Garden Tips

Keep out insects and pests: Peppermint, Thyme, and Clove oil are an excellent natural repellent.

Keep plants healthy: Melaleuca is great for stopping threats to plant health in your garden.

Attract pollinators: Essential oils aren't just for repelling. Certain oils attract bees or butterflies to help pollinate your garden. Lavender, Marjoram, Helichrysum, Basil, Sage, and Rosemary are great for bees. Also, try Lavender, Fennel, Helichrysum, and Sage essential oils to attract more butterflies to your garden.

Stop snails and slugs from taking a toll on your garden: Cedarwood mixed with water can stop that.

Combine in a spray bottle.

Essential Oils: Gift of

By Jessica L. M. Herzog, MD, FAAP, ABHIM

Essential oils are for everyone, and all ages can benefit from their therapeutic properties. Here are some simple ways to use essential oils every day that will introduce you to more possibilities of wellness, peace, and happy living.

Today, ongoing research helps us better understand the beneficial properties of each complete oil and constituent. Medical communities are paying more attention to these natural and pure additions to healthcare. dōTERRA On Guard® is immune support for several situations including daily strengthening of the body before an exposure occurs, targeted use when the immune system needs more support, and ongoing intensive support when the immune stress has lasted for longer periods of time.* If you are interested in essential oil history, read about the Black Plague in the mid-1300s.

Using Essential Oils for Emotions

In our fast-paced world, having a refuge in our homes is one way to reduce stress. Diffusing essential oils at home is a great way to create a balanced and peaceful atmosphere. Our sense of smell is the most direct way to affect our brain and emotions. Most of us can think of a scent, which takes us back to a cherished childhood memory. Perhaps a certain aroma makes you think of Grandma's famous baking, or her usual perfume, or her holiday decorations of evergreens. These are examples of how the aromas enter the nose, trigger the nerves in the olfactory bulb, and are processed by the limbic system (our emotional center) and then by the rest of the brain—which brings together emotion and memory. Here are two suggestions for creating an emotionally balanced space.

First, diffuse oils everywhere; use them in the moment to positively influence the mood. Uplift the mood in the home and at social gatherings by diffusing in the kitchen and living room. Create a peaceful sleep experience by diffusing in the bedroom. Reduce tension by diffusing in a work place or study area. Explore the dōTERRA Emotional Aromatherapy™ System for more ways to deal with specific emotions.

Second, create new scent-emotion connections. Diffuse the same scent at each birthday celebration. Choose a summer holiday scent and diffuse during parties. Get a car diffuser and keep the aroma going all the way to your vacation destination. Choose a calming oil, like Lavender, for the children's bedtime routine. By making these simple adjustments, we can use essential oils to relax and connect.

Using Essential Oils at Home

Here are some ideas of how to use the Home Essentials Kit. This kit contains some of the core "gifts of the Earth" for body and mood support for a greater sense of wellness and peace. Be empowered and ready to take action when using or sharing these precious, pure, and potent tools.

the Earth for All to Enjoy dōTERRA On Guard®. Take daily (1–2x/day) for immune support, or more often (3–6x/day) for bodily support during seasonal threats or long-lasting immune stress.* On Guard is one of my favorite blends because it empowers individuals and families to take charge of their health needs and get results. Whether in On Guard Plus capsules, diffused, or topically, I never miss a day.

Oregano. This oil is great to have on hand for frequent use when additional immune support is needed.* Remember, it's hot. Always dilute heavily if using topically. Try adding 1–3 drops of dōTERRA On Guard and Oregano into a capsule for adult internal use.*

Frankincense. “When in doubt, use Frankincense.” The historical background and modern research of Frankincense yields impressive results. Try applying dōTERRA Frankincense Touch along the spine. This is my favorite single oil because it supports a healthy nervous system.* If you enjoy using Frankincense, then try DDR Prime, a blend that contains it. Remember the power of synergy between oils.

dōTERRA Breathe®. Apply on the chest before getting into the shower or before a workout for a natural wake up and improved sense of deep breathing.

DigestZen®. Supports healthy digestion.* Our digestive track is where most of our immune system resides and where much of our detoxification occurs. Staying regular is key to our body's effective elimination of toxins. Try DigestZen Touch for a pre-diluted, easy application. I ask my older children if they prefer it “on their belly or in their mouth?” when the need arises. Giving them these choices (topical vs internal) creates a great sense of empowerment to have a voice in their wellness journey. In my experience, it is interesting to note that they choose internal when the need seems more intense.

Lavender. Soothing to summer-related skin irritations. Calming for everyone from baby to grandpa. Supports an environment for restful sleep. My oldest son's favorite oil is Lavender because of the connection he has with its calming and restful properties. Most nights he chooses to use it both in the diffuser and on his feet.

Deep Blue®. After an intense work out or after a long day at the computer, treat your muscles. Apply Deep Blue after a hot shower or sauna or under a hot compress for targeted relief. This blend is supportive for discomfort of all kinds. I always finish with taking a deep breath from my hands to mentally let the stress go.

Lemon. Diffuse for an uplifting aroma. Cleansing to the body and household surfaces, including wood. Try adding 1–2 drops to your smoothie or water. Citrus oils add flavor and variety to my water, making it easier to drink more and stay adequately hydrated. I rotate among the citrus oils to expose my body to a variety of constituents, just as you would eat a variety of fruits and vegetables.

Peppermint. Soothe head tension by applying at the temples. Add one drop on the tongue for a breath freshener, or diffuse for a natural perk up at any time of day. For some time, I have foregone all forms of caffeine in favor of this healthier choice.

Fennel

Aromatic Description:

Licorice, sweet, honey

Distillation Method:

Steam Distillation

Plant Part: Seed

Fennel (Foeniculum vulgare) is a flowering plant species in the carrot family. The ancient Egyptians and Romans awarded garlands of fennel as praise to victorious warriors because, fennel was believed to bestow strength, courage, and longevity. Fennel can grow up to six feet in height and has delicate, feathery leaves.

How to use:

Aromatically

- ◆ Use three to four drops in a diffuser for a calming, sweet-smelling aromatic experience.
- ◆ Add a drop of Fennel and Lavender to the palms of your hands. Rub your hands together and inhale; let the aroma sooth and calm.

Internally

- ◆ Put a drop of Fennel in water or tea to help fight sweet tooth cravings.
- ◆ Add one to two drops in a veggie capsule to promote digestion.*

Topically

- ◆ Apply one to two drops to desired area. Dilute with dōTERRA Fractionated Coconut Oil to minimize any skin sensitivity.
- ◆ Combine with dōTERRA Fractionated Coconut Oil for a soothing abdominal massage.

Fun Fact: According to Strabo, a Greek geographer, the town of Marathon, located in Greece, literally means “a place full of fennels.” It is believed that the town was named so due to its abundance of fennel plants in the area.

Idea Notebook

Strawberry SLIM & SASSY® POPSICLES

- 1 pint organic strawberries
- 1 peeled/deseeded mango
- 1 cup coconut water
- 1-2 drops dōTERRA Slim & Sassy*
- Popsicle sticks
- Popsicle molds

In a blender, blend all ingredients together until smooth. Pour into popsicle molds or into small cups. Use popsicle sticks for the handles and freeze overnight. Enjoy!

TERRAGREENS® Gummies

I like to add a scoop of TerraGreens to my smoothies, but I wanted to find a way to get my kids to get this awesome product into their diets as well. These are super easy to make, and my kids love them! —Amanda Beach, Texas

- 2 cups fruit juice of choice*
 - 1 tbsp. local honey
 - 2 scoops TerraGreens powder
 - 6 tbsp. unflavored grass-fed gelatin
 - Gummy bear mold
- *I used 1 cup apple and 1 cup pomegranate

Bring fruit juice to a boil. Remove from heat and let cool slightly. Add honey and stir until dissolved. Add Terragreens and stir. Sprinkle gelatin in one tbsp. at a time, stirring constantly with a wire whisk so the gelatin doesn't clump. Use syringe to transfer liquid to mold. Refrigerate 2 hours or until solid. Keep leftovers in fridge.

Homemade LEMON MARSHMALLOWS

- 1 cup filtered water
- 3 tbsp. grass-fed beef gelatin
- 1 cup organic honey
- 1 tsp. organic vanilla extract
- 2-3 drops Lemon essential oil
- ¼ tsp. sea salt

1. Line 8x8 baking pan with parchment paper and grease with coconut oil. To prevent stickiness, dust with powdered sugar or arrowroot powder.
2. In a bowl, mix gelatin with ½ cup of water; set aside.
3. Bring other ½ cup of water honey, vanilla, and salt to boil over medium-high heat. Place a candy thermometer in sauce pan and continue to boil mixture until it reaches 240F; immediately remove the sauce pan from the heat.
4. Slowly pour the honey mixture into the bowl combining it with the softened gelatin; mix on medium-low. Add Lemon oil, and vanilla. Increase speed to high and continue mixing until it reaches a smooth, thick, and creamy consistency.

5. Pour marshmallow mixture into prepared baking dish and spread evenly.
6. Let sit at room temperature for at least 4 hours or overnight.
7. Dust top of marshmallow with powdered substance of choice.
8. Carefully remove from pan and cut into squares. Keep in airtight container for about a week.

Note: They also freeze well, and don't need to be thawed out. Be sure to dust them with extra powdered sugar, arrowroot, or cornstarch before freezing to avoid stickiness.

Sesame Peanut GINGER DRESSING

“When I think of summer and eating, I think of salads.”
—Kristi Warner, California

- ¼ cup crunchy raw peanut butter
- ¼ cup water
- ½ cup Apple cider vinegar
- 3 tbsp. raw honey
- ½ tsp. salt
- 1 tbsp. Tamari (organic, gluten free soy sauce)
- 1 tbsp. sesame oil
- 1 drop Ginger essential oil

Salad:
4 cups purple cabbage
1 red pepper
5 scallions
2 carrots, shredded

Top with sliced almonds and avocado.

Dressing is only 30 calories/per tablespoon.

Lisa's Story

Too busy, too tired, or too intimidated by the gym crowd that looks like they came straight off their Shape® Magazine photoshoot to get a quick workout in? We've all got our reasons why we haven't yet made exercise a part of our daily routine, and they are all excuses. With the right mindset, we are all capable of finding ways to integrate more physical activity into our lives and improving our health each and every day. Whether your goal is to fit into your high school jeans or just be healthy so you can play with your children, there is only one way to make it happen. As Will Smith says in The Pursuit of Happyness: "If you want something, go get it. Period."

The dōTERRA global campus gym is a busy place. With nearly 2,000 active on-site employees, that fitness utopia gets its fair share of foot traffic and sweat. Among its regular patrons, one stands out. Literally. When she's not playing badminton, dōTERRA member services agent Lisa Pressley can often be found in the gym lifting weights and running—on one leg. Not because she is into some new balance-focused workout program, but because that is just what she has always done.

Watching her run, in an amazing display of proprioception and crutch-handling skill, is an awe-inspiring and motivating experience. But to Lisa, it's just another day. Despite not fitting the mold of the typical gym-goer, Lisa prioritizes daily exercise so that she can stay healthy and continue doing the things she loves.

All-Around Athlete

Growing up in Jiangxi, China, Lisa never thought she was different than the other children, except that her teachers were constantly telling her to slow down... when they could actually catch up to speak to her, that is. Like most other kids, Lisa spent her free time climbing trees and jumping up stairs like a rabbit, with zero inclination that she was any different. Despite the pleas from her teachers that the end result of her rambunctious behavior would be an accidental fall into the river, and taking all her friends with her for a swim, she never slowed down. She competed in track and field and dance and became known in the neighborhood as one of the fastest rope jumpers. After moving to Arizona at the age of 12, Lisa took her energy and competitive spirit to the soccer pitch, baseball diamond, and swimming pool. Now, on most Fridays she can be found putting her honed athletic skills to the test on the badminton court.

There's literally no athletic endeavor Lisa won't try, several times if need be. After enviously watching her sister ride a bike, she decided it was her turn. She spent countless hours in the driveway, falling and getting back up, but she eventually developed the balance and core strength to maintain her equilibrium while simultaneously peddling. Now she counts cycling among her (very long) list of favorite activities.

The Goal is Life

Lisa doesn't have any specific goals for her exercise program. Her work breaks aren't spent Googling the latest exercise routines and she doesn't conclude each workout by stepping on the scale and logging her progress. She has no interest in qualifying for the Boston Marathon or being a fitness role model, she simply wants to maintain her health so she can continue doing the things that she enjoys. Most importantly, she wants to continue finding new activities that she loves, as she knows life is even more exciting and vivid than it looks like on a screen. The endurance, strength, and movement abilities she has gained from her regular exercise ensures that no sporting endeavor or outdoor adventure is off limits.

LISA'S TIPS

- 1 Your health is up to you. Nobody can improve it or take it away from you but you.
- 2 The most important thing with exercise is to make it a part of your daily routine. So find out what works for you and discard the rest.
- 3 Exercise doesn't feel like work when it involves activities and people you enjoy.
- 4 Don't get caught up in what others may think of you. Even if you aren't a fitness model, not only are you improving yourself by working out every day, but also you never know who you may be inspiring to do the same.
- 5 Try diffusing Citrus Bliss® or Elevation before heading to the gym to elevate your mood and increase vitality. And of course, no post-workout regime is complete without Deep Blue® Rub.

DIY's & UPCYCLES

This summer give your kids the freedom of imagining their own worlds, and making up stories, by creating a space just for them.

GARLAND

WHAT YOU NEED

- Wool balls
- Needle
- Embroidery thread

DIRECTIONS

1. Thread needle, and pull it through wool balls.
Note: choose desired distance from each wool ball.
2. Tie knot at beginning and end of garland.
3. Use for decoration.
Tip: You can use the wool balls to diffuse different essential oils, while your children play.

TENT

WHAT YOU NEED

- 4–3x48 inch pieces of white wood
- $\frac{3}{4}$ inch drill bit
- $\frac{3}{4}$ x 48 inch dowel
- Sheet fasteners
- Paint of choice (optional)
- An old sheet

DIRECTIONS

1. Measure 5 inches down from top of each piece of white wood, and mark in middle.
2. Take $\frac{3}{4}$ inch drill bit, and drill hole where marked.
3. Lay two pieces of white wood on top of each other, and push dowel through.
4. Spread the white wood apart to make tent shape.
Note: Dowel should be snug; this way the tent keeps its shape.
5. Drape sheet over dowel, and fasten ends to each piece of wood by using a sheet fastener.
Tip: You can paint your sheet by using an old sponge, cut to your desired shape, and using it as a stamp.

PLANT HANGER

WHAT YOU NEED

- Old supplement bottle
- Spray paint
- Twine

DIRECTIONS

1. Spray paint supplement bottle desired color.
2. While your bottle dries, cut 8–10 inch pieces of twine.
Note: Cut twine longer for larger supplement bottles.
3. Knot together 8 pieces of twine, separate 2 pieces of thread and knot 2 inches above your original knot. Repeat.
4. Now, take one string from 2 partnering knots, knot those 2 strings together about 2 inches above the other.
5. Keep repeating until you get your desired length.
6. Plant succulent inside bottle, with dirt and water.
7. Place inside plant hanger, and tie knot at end.

TASSELS

WHAT YOU NEED

- Yarn
- Thread
- Needle
- 4x5 inch piece of cardboard

DIRECTIONS

1. Wrap yarn around cardboard approximately 30 times.
Note: Depending on your desired length, you can cut cardboard larger. If you want thicker tassels, wrap more than 30 times.
2. Pull yarn off cardboard, tie 3 inch piece of yarn around one side, cut through the yarn on the other.
3. Flip it over, tie another piece of yarn around it about an inch from the top, so it looks like a small ball.
4. Repeat steps 1–3 for more tassels.
5. Thread needle through each tassel to create garland.

THE HOMEBIRTH

with Stephanie Fritz, The Essential Midwife

Choice

What is your birth philosophy?

Homebirth is not for every woman. My clients and I are a team. We look at all the choices surrounding pregnancy, labor, and birth, and I support them in whatever they choose through offering education and choices.

I am the mother of four daughters, three of which were born at home. I feel it's these experiences that have shaped my vision of what women's healthcare should be. I know first-hand what a difference information and a sense of control can make when having a baby.

What are some of the benefits of having a midwife and home birthing?

Studies show that an unfamiliar environment can compromise labor. Fear and discomfort can increase the pain experienced in labor, while relaxation can actually diminish stress, improve oxygen flow to the baby, and be a positive labor support for mom. When a woman births at home, she has "the home court advantage." She can move about freely, wear her own clothes without worrying about the back flap of her gown opening, eat and drink as she wants to keep up her energy, relax in a warm tub of water with essential oils, have her feet massaged by supportive friends, and even birth in whatever position she feels comfortable in. Women are very in tune with what's happening in their bodies, and most of the time they want to be in control during this process. Being in control at home in a familiar environment helps to eliminate fear and feelings of anxiety. My intention is to provide a safe, comfortable, and familiar space for women to do what they do naturally.

What successes have you and your patients seen using dōTERRA essential oils?

Using essential oils in pregnancy creates an empowerment that is so valuable. Being able to have solutions that are timely and effective is essential.

Women experience a lot of changes in their body and there can be a lot of common issues, whether it's morning sickness or a variety of other occasional discomforts. When clients call in with the occasional morning sickness in pregnancy, I refer them to Peppermint or Cardamom essential oils. I have also had great success in my practice using Peppermint and Myrrh to help turn the baby to the optimal fetal position. When mom needs extra support for her back discomfort, I refer her to Deep Blue® and she reports back with gratitude for the relief it gave. When used appropriately, I believe essential oils can safely help during pregnancy and should be taken advantage of. The benefit associated with the essential oils can be extremely helpful for pregnancy, both on a physical and emotional level.

What tips would you give to expecting mothers to enhance their birthing experience?

Remember education is empowering, so read books that are relevant to your desired birthing experience. If you are planning a home birth, then read about that, but also learn about plan B and even plan C so you are prepared if you have to deviate from plan A.

Relaxation is the key to a successful birth. Be prepared whether you are in a hospital or home to have things around you that bring you comfort, because the more comfortable you are in your surroundings, the more relaxed you can be. dōTERRA Balance® and Wild Orange make an excellent delivery-diffusing blend. The grounding blend helps balance emotions in the body, supporting feelings of courage, confidence, and strength, and Wild Orange helps reduce feelings of anxiousness.

Consider a doula for labor and postpartum support. She is trained to be an advocate for you when you are in "labor land." She often knows just what you need when you can't vocalize it.

What essential oils do you recommend using (and how) during the labor delivery process?

There are many oils you could use in labor, but I like to simplify and use as few as possible.

Labor

Basil and Black Pepper essential oils combined with Fractionated Coconut Oil and massaged onto the low back can relieve discomfort during labor, and provide the needed strength to endure with greater ease. These two oils can be especially helpful when experiencing back labor.

Clary Sage essential oil is calming and helps relieve tension, which helps with contractions. Try blending Clary Sage with Geranium and/or Lavender.

AromaTouch® massage blend improves circulation and relaxation, and is soothing to both mind and body. The back and shoulders are often areas of tension; massage with Fractionated Coconut Oil to these areas for stress and tension relief.

Birth

Peppermint essential oil, when inhaled, can help reduce feelings of nausea brought on by discomfort. I sometimes use it to turn a breech baby. I apply Peppermint with Fractionated Coconut Oil from hip to hip and spread up and over the abdomen in a rainbow fashion. I apply Myrrh to lower where I want the baby's head.

Wild Orange and dōTERRA Balance® make an excellent delivery-diffusing blend. The grounding blend helps balance emotions, supporting feelings of courage, confidence, and strength. Wild Orange helps reduce feelings of anxiousness.

Perineum support for pushing stage:

- 20 drops Helichrysum
- 20 drops Frankincense
- 30 ml Fractionated Coconut Oil

Gently massage on the perineum during crowning to lubricate and help ease baby out.

"Essential oils are all about keeping the body in an environment that optimizes its healing capacity and supports a healthy immune system. This is why using essential oils every day is such a powerful wellness tool."

Stephanie Fritz is a Certified Professional Midwife, author, public speaker, and AromaTouch® trainer. She has had a very successful midwife practice in Arizona since 2000. She began utilizing dōTERRA essential oils with her clients and their babies as a natural health solution in 2008.

TIM HIGHTOWER

WHAT IS YOUR BIGGEST ACCOMPLISHMENT IN YOUR NFL CAREER?

I would say the biggest accomplishment of my NFL career so far would be scoring the game-winning touchdown in the NFC Championship game, advancing the Cardinals to the Super Bowl my rookie year. That and working my way back to the NFL after three years off due to my ACL injury.

WHAT WOULD BE YOUR ULTIMATE ACHIEVEMENT?

In life, family first—raising a family is my number one priority. I want to be the best dad and husband I can be. For football, overcoming the impossible and inspiring others to do the same.

HOW DO YOU SET YOUR GOALS?

First, I look at the big picture. I look at what I want to accomplish in the end and then backtrack and start at the beginning. What milestones or steps do I need to take to get to the end goal? It's all about remembering the bigger picture and figuring out the steps that get you there.

WHAT WAS THE BEST ADVICE YOU WERE EVER GIVEN?

For football and career, surround yourself with people who have accomplished what you're looking to accomplish. You see the fruits of their labor and see the work they've put in, and you listen to them and take their advice. Second, invest in your body and in your craft. Discipline yourself to do the things that will prepare you for next steps in your career.

In life, sacrifice to the level that you want to achieve. Whatever it is you want in life, depending on what it is, understand the sacrifice required to achieve that. Nothing is really impossible. The higher you want to achieve, the greater the sacrifice. If you're willing to put in the work and make the necessary sacrifices, you can achieve whatever you set your mind to.

SAN FRANCISCO 49ERS RUNNING BACK

WHAT IS YOUR BIGGEST CHALLENGE, AND WHAT DO YOU DO TO MANAGE THIS CHALLENGE?

Not buying out. Putting time and effort into practice and focusing on my craft. I enjoy learning how to improve and get better and working hard. Also, finding a balance with career and family, prioritizing and making time to be with my kids and my family. At the end of the day they don't care about football, they care about Dad.

WHAT DOES YOUR TYPICAL DAY LOOK LIKE?

In season, different days of the week vary, but generally my day starts at 4:45–5:00am. I start by planning out the day, going over my responsibilities and what needs to get done that day. I usually start the day watching film, then do some form of treatment—different exercises/treatments (varies depending on specific needs), then study and review the playbook, go to practice, work out, more film study, stretching, etc. I typically get home between 6:30 and 7:00pm, spend time with family, dinner, go to sleep, and repeat.

WHERE DO YOU DRAW YOUR INSPIRATION FROM?

My parents. They've instilled values in me that have given me opportunities to succeed. Seeing the many struggles they have gone through and how they've persevered and overcome has inspired me to do better and take what they've given me and move forward with it. Aside from my parents, every time I interact with different people and hear how hard life can be and see that not everyone is blessed with equal opportunities, it inspires me to help motivate these people to find their own personal success. Those interactions just inspire you to succeed to the point where you can have an impact and inspire others by sharing your story and trials you've overcome throughout the process, hopefully connecting with them and showing them that they can overcome and succeed as well.

Age	30

HOW DID YOU LEARN ABOUT dōTERRA?

My wife, Rikkie, introduced me. Recovery and sleep are two extremely important components to my success. She introduced me to dōTERRA products that help with those two things specifically.

WHAT dōTERRA PRODUCTS DO YOU USE THE MOST?

Deep Blue® and my diffuser. I use Deep Blue in massage to help with recovery. The diffuser is nice because I can choose what oils and blends I want to diffuse, and I can take it with me when I'm on the road to help with sleep and relaxation.

WHAT IS YOUR FAVORITE ESSENTIAL OIL DIFFUSER BLEND, IF YOU HAVE ONE?

dōTERRA Breathe®. It's definitely a go-to blend for me.

FUN IN THE SUN

Summer means a lot of time in the sun. It's important to be prepared with only the best natural products so that you and your family can make the most of your sun-filled break. Protect, refresh, and sooth your skin with these easy-to-make DIYs.

Body Wipes with Lavender and Geranium

Combine 2-3 tablespoons witch hazel, 3-5 drops Lavender, 1-3 drops Geranium into Ziploc bag or small Tupperware container. Add quartered paper towel pieces. Use to refresh skin or as a makeup remover. Note: Instead of paper towels, you can re-use fabric pieces.

Beach Waves with Lemon and Rosemary

Add 1 teaspoon dōTERRA Healthy Hold Glaze, 2 tablespoons Epsom salt, 1/2 teaspoon sea salt to an 8-ounce spray bottle, followed by, 1/2 teaspoon dōTERRA Fractionated Coconut Oil, 5 drops Rosemary, 5 drops Lemon. Top with water and shake. Spray generously on hair while scrunching with hands for a natural, wavy look.

Cool Breeze with Peppermint and Ylang Ylang

Pour 1 cup Aloe Vera juice, 1/4 cup water, 3-5 drops Peppermint, 3-5 drops Ylang Ylang into glass spray bottle; shake well before use. Application tip: Avoid contact with eyes.

After Sun with Frankincense and Sandalwood

Combine 1 cup Aloe Vera Gel, 1/4 cup dōTERRA Fractionated Coconut Oil, 12-15 drops Frankincense, 8-10 drops Sandalwood to glass spray bottle; shake well before use. Spray on skin after sun exposure for a soothing affect.

Spikenard

GIFT FROM THE PEAKS

On April 25, 2015, Nepal experienced a devastating earthquake that killed almost 9,000 people and injured nearly 22,000. The earthquake had a magnitude of 7.8Mw or 8.1Ms and a maximum Mercalli Intensity of IX (Violent). “Spikenard, was an oil that we had on our radar for quite some time,” said Jared Moon, dōTERRA Strategic Sourcing Manager. “So we added it to our post-earthquake economic impact efforts.” Spikenard is a primitive oil that has been used for centuries in Ayurvedic practices for benefits such as mental clarity and grounding, as well as helping skin and hair health. Spikenard is a great addition to our collection. The exciting thing about Spikenard is that it is being produced and harvested in areas completely separate from Wintergreen.

“When in doubt get your Spikenard out.”

—Dr. Hill

The Co-Impact Sourcing® initiative in Nepal has brought many benefits to the Nepalese people. One of the biggest has been creating added jobs involved in Spikenard harvesting, drying, and distillation. The Himalayan regions of western Nepal, where the vast majority of the Spikenard is harvested, is one of the country's poorest areas, so any economic activity that we can bring to the region is a great benefit.

A DAY IN THE LIFE OF A NEPALESE HARVESTER

Harvesting Spikenard is a very time-consuming and challenging activity. It only grows in the higher altitudes—3,000 m to 5,000 m (about 9,850 ft. to 16,400 ft.)—and generally on the cooler, western side of steep hills (40°–70° inclined slopes). Accessing these locations takes multiple days and requires the harvesters, who also tend to be goat herders, to set up a basecamp from which they work. Because they are harvesting the roots, harvesters have to dig them out of the ground, clean off the dirt, and keep going all day. The Spikenard harvest is restricted to a few months of the year so they have to work quickly and carefully to ensure that the plants will regrow for the next harvest. It is physically demanding working at those altitudes and requires long stints away from their homes and families.

Finding new oils to source is not our only objective. We want to help build the individuals, regions, and countries that we come in contact with. We also want to make sure those sourcing the oils have the resources to increase their income. One of our objectives in Nepal is to help them cultivate Spikenard. Our hope is that through cultivation we will increase the amount of root material that the plants produce and make accessing the plants less time consuming. The second objective is a project to install solar dryers so the harvesters can dry the roots rather than selling the fresh roots to a drying facility.

“The majority of Spikenard's chemistry is comprised of four or five compounds, and it makes up from 60–70 percent of its chemistry. It is a fairly dominant type profile that we always expect in Spikenard. In our Spikenard essential oil, we have identified 170 different compounds. Not only do we have vast amounts of chemistry, but we have non-focused chemistry. The complete opposite of what we see with essential oils that are more dominant. So what does this all mean? Spikenard will do almost everything,” explains Dr. David K. Hill, D.C.

The Nepalese people are strong, hardworking, and hopeful—hopeful for a better, more independent life. Through doTERRA's Co-Impact Sourcing they have found that hope. With doTERRA's help, they are creating and sustaining their families and communities, all while growing in their knowledge of the land. The harvesting and distillation of Spikenard will not only benefit those sourcing it but those who partake of it. With Spikenard's many benefits and uses, it's no wonder Dr. Hill says, “When in doubt get your Spikenard out.”

FACT: It took the Spikenard film crew eight days of trekking on foot to get to the areas where they could capture the needed footage.

The WEDDING PLANNING GUIDE

8 TIPS FOR STRESSING LESS

June through early October is a popular time for wedding celebrations. For each couple, the wedding day should be a personal and special experience—whether you choose to plan a big bash, an intimate and modest ceremony, or turn it into a “secret” occasion. Make your big day reflect your personality and your relationship with your loved one. In other words, don’t let social peer pressure or what you may see on TV dictate what you should or shouldn’t do for your own wedding. But life-changing events don’t come without a bit of stress, and it’s expected to feel a little overwhelmed at one point or another. Here are eight quick tips to help you stress less and make your wedding a dream come true.

1. Prioritize. Decide what is most important, and then go from there. This will ensure that your must-haves make it into the wedding first, before all of the minor details. Of course this will depend on your personal needs and desires, but these top priorities might include the type of ceremony, certain special guests, the perfect venue, or the dress you’ve been pining over for the last five years.

2. Budget. Figure out your budget and stick to it. If you don’t have a budget to work with, you won’t have a point of reference for judging how much you can spend on the photographer, flowers, venue, decorations, catering, etc. And to help avoid stress, consider assigning about 5 percent of your budget to “just in case,” for those unforeseen expenses.

3. Simplify. Get rid of the unnecessary. Use your priorities list to determine what needs to stay and what can go. The wedding dress? That’s essential. The hand-stenciled place cards for each wedding guest? Maybe not. Simplify all you can to make sure you can devote your best efforts to the things that matter most.

4. Be realistic. Set realistic expectations and deadlines. There’s no doubt that you want your wedding day to be special, and it will be. But it likely won’t be perfect! Be realistic when setting your expectations and deadlines so you don’t overwork and overstress yourself striving for perfection, only to end up disappointed. Being realistic also allows your helpers—family, friends, vendors, etc.—to provide satisfactory solutions.

5. Connect. Utilize your network for close-to-home, personalized help. Do you have a family member who’s an amazing seamstress? Ask if she could help with dress alterations. Do you have a coworker with a great eye for design? Maybe he can create your invitations! Use the skills of your family, friends, coworkers, and other connections to simplify your to-do list.

6. Delegate. You don’t need to do everything yourself, so delegate some responsibilities. This takes some stress off of you and provides a more pleasant planning experience overall. Of course, be sure to delegate to people you can trust, like dependable family members and close friends. And remember that in some cases, you might need to delegate to professionals.

7. De-stress. Don’t let stress get in the way of planning your special day. There’s a lot to plan and organize, but if you’re feeling overwhelmed, don’t be afraid to take a step back and reevaluate. Assess what could be simplified or delegated. And don’t lose sight of what’s most important about your wedding: you’re marrying the love of your life! “Love is our true destiny. We do not find the meaning of life by ourselves alone—we find it with another.”

—Thomas Merton

8. Enjoy. This is your wedding! Make it an enjoyable experience. Have fun along the way with the planning, and when the big day arrives, enjoy it! All of the planning is done at that point, and you should enjoy your day with your new spouse and your loved ones.

Essential Oils for the Bride-To-Be dōTERRA Serenity® Restful Blend: Use this tranquil, relaxing blend of Lavender, Cedarwood, Ho Wood, Ylang Ylang, Marjoram, Roman Chamomile, Vetiver, and Hawaiian Sandalwood essential oils to reduce worry and calm anxious feelings.

Wild Orange: Try this energizing and revitalizing oil to rejuvenate yourself and reduce worry.

Lavender: Lavender essential oil is a goldmine for the bride-to-be! Add a few drops to shampoo for healthy-looking hair; add it to your moisturizer for hydrated, soft skin; use it as a perfume; or use it to encourage restful sleep by diffusing it at night, adding a few drops to your bedding, or rubbing it on the bottom of your feet before bedtime.

dōTERRA Balance® Grounding Blend: This blend of Spruce, Ho Wood, Frankincense, Blue Tansy, and Blue Chamomile essential oils with Fractionated Coconut Oil is great for promoting a positive mood. Its calming effect also encourages harmony and emotional balance, and it can help ease anxious feelings.

Grapefruit: When used aromatically, this oil also helps boost your mood and has a clarifying effect on the mind.

Clary Sage: Diffuse this oil to reduce feelings of stress. Rub three to five drops on the abdomen during a menstrual cycle for a soothing massage.

Melaleuca: This essential oil's purifying qualities make it ideal for cleansing your skin and nails. Use it to soothe occasional skin irritations and to promote a healthy complexion.

Sandalwood: Apply one or two drops of Sandalwood essential oil to wet hair to restore moisture and give your hair a silky shine. This is perfect for engagement photos, bridals, and your wedding day!

#ShareAromaTouch

aromatouch® TECHNIQUE

Miva Bethias, a Wellness Advocates from St Sauveur D'aunis, France, is one of the inspiring examples of someone who shares the dōTERRA culture and essential oils by serving others through the dōTERRA AromaTouch Hand Technique.

Serve and Empower Others

The dōTERRA AromaTouch® Technique is the perfect combination of essential oils and human connection. It brings anyone and everyone together through caring about each other on a one-on-one level. Many dōTERRA Wellness Advocates use the AromaTouch Technique as a gift and an opportunity to serve others. Their stories encourage all of us to share this technique and see how we can impact others in a positive and loving way.

This past Christmas season, Miva visited a healthcare facility in LaRochelle, France. She and a few of her team members volunteered their time to share this technique and the dōTERRA oils with the local residents there. Miva says, "My team and I wanted to fill a void for those who needed that extra one-on-one time. We wanted to share a pure moment with the patients and bring them some joy during the days we came to be with them."

They used two oils for the hand technique: Wild Orange and Frankincense. "I was so happy to share the oils in the facility for those two days," Miva expressed. "Seeing the smiles on the patients' faces as well as the people on my team that were serving them was so rewarding! I think that every member of my team was touched by this experience and grateful for the opportunities we can make to serve with these essential oils. All of the patients, nurses, and physicians who received a hand technique during these two days of service asked, 'When are you coming back?'"

At times our efforts may feel insignificant, but in reality, we can impact those we serve and empower others through our example of serving others. Something as plain and simple as the AromaTouch Hand Technique can help spread joy throughout the world—as long as we go out and share it.
— Miva Berthias
