Frankincense

Plant Genus: Boswellia carterii, sacra, papyrifera, and frereana

Distillation Method: Steam distillation

Aromatic Description: Warm, spicy, and clean

Plant Part: Resin

The King of Oils

In the world of essential oils, Frankincense reigns supreme. Known as the king of oils, Frankincense has been prized for over 5,000 years due to its rich aroma and extensive natural benefits. From cellular health when ingested* to soothing skin, Frankincense essential oil has an array of wonderful benefits. With its myriad uses, there's no question as to why this plant was considered a person's most prized possession in antiquity.

Frankincense is distilled from the resin of Boswellia trees. Dozens of species of Boswellia trees exist, but only four produce CPTG® Frankincense oil. dōTERRA uses all four of these species to produce a Frankincense essential oil that's brimming with benefits.

* These statements have not been evaluated by the Food and Drug Administration. This product is not intended to diagnose, treat, cure, or prevent any disease.

Fun Fact

Frankincense comes from the resinous "tears" of trees that have been carefully scored—or "bled."

If cared for properly, frankincense trees can produce tears for hundreds of years!

How to Use Frankincense Essential Oil

Topical Use

- + Dilute and apply topically or add to lotion to nourish and calm skin.
- + Rub on the hands after a long day for a warming and soothing effect.

Internal Use

- + Take one to two drops internally in a Veggie Cap to support healthy cellular function.*
- + Place a drop under your tongue for internal health benefits*

Aromatic Use

- + Diffuse to create a relaxing and peaceful atmosphere.
- + Use during meditation or reflection

BEHIND THE BOTTLE

Birch

(Betula lenta)

Over a decade ago, dōTERRA sourced a small supply of Birch essential oil from a Northeastern US-based supplier. While there wasn't enough to sell as a permanent product, the dōTERRA family loved receiving it in convention kits or other special occasions. At the time, Birch could only be sourced in small volumes due to the complexity of raw material preparation and distillation. dōTERRA soon outgrew this supplier's production, and Birch became a thing of the past.

A Place for Birch

Royce Novosel-Johnson and his family own land in rural Kane County, Pennsylvania, that's abundant with birch trees. To most people in this area, birch trees are a nuisance. They grow aggressively and often compete with other native plants.

If people want to harvest lumber species like cherry, oak, or maple, they must go through birch to do it. During lumber harvesting, birch and other unwanted trees are taken down along with the premium species.

Removing this kind of Birch trees helps to protect the local biodiversity. Birch and other unwanted trees aren't always wasted. They're generally sent off to become paper or mulch, but looking at his family's forest, Royce knew there was a better way to manage all the trees. There had to be a place where people could benefit from the birch trees.

In 2016, Royce reached out to dōTERRA. One month later, our Sourcing team was on the ground. Little did we know how long and intensive the process would be to build a sustainable supply of Birch essential oil from the ground up.

“We go to great lengths to make sure the products we’re offering are exactly what we promise across the board. Birch is a classic study of how we do that.”

Ben Platt, dōTERRA Director of Strategic Sourcing

Pushing Back on Purity

Generations ago, birch oil was commonly produced in the Northeastern United States. Traditionally, those with a lot of birch trees on their property would build a small distillation unit, typically made of wood. They’d harvest birch trees in the winter and distill them for supplementary income.

However, a process for creating fake birch oil, using synthetic methyl salicylate was eventually developed, which was much cheaper than purchasing pure birch oil from local cottage businesses. Distilling pure birch essential oil is a labor-intensive process with low yields (approximately 0.1%) which significantly adds to the cost.

As brokers and companies moved toward the cheaper synthetic option, many families stopped producing birch oil. It wasn’t worth it without reliable buyers.

Birch essential oil is predominantly methyl salicylate, similar to Wintergreen oil. This chemical makeup means it’s easy to fabricate and difficult to detect adulteration. For years now, dōTERRA® chemists have been researching and perfecting how to detect the differences between true Wintergreen and Birch versus synthetic methyl salicylate. They’ve published peer-reviewed research on how to identify and detect the biomarkers of pure Birch essential oil.

In 2022, scientists at dōTERRA published a peer-reviewed study that tested 27 commercially available Birch essential oils and found all samples claiming to be 100% Birch oil did not have the Birch biomarkers, but rather had wintergreen, synthetic methyl salicylate, or a mixture of both. In fact, none of the samples that were tested were truly pure, let alone contained any birch oil at all!

From Generation to Generation

Some artisanal knowledge of birch distillation has been lost to time, but fortunately not all of it. Seventy-seven-year-old Skip Cavanaugh of Wellsboro, Pennsylvania, is a perfect example. Since his father, Skip and his family have kept generational records about distilling birch oil. Skip's expertise has been indispensable for the dōTERRA Sourcing Team during the years-long process of determining how to produce pure Birch essential oil sustainably.

dōTERRA Vice President of Global Strategic Sourcing Tim Valentiner says, "There's a reason no one's already producing birch oil on a commercial scale. It's really, really difficult to do. It's low yielding, and therefore the essential oil is expensive."

There's also something magical, something unique, something special about the heritage of birch oil being produced by mountain men and traded on the American frontier for a long time. The way we're using it today is the same way they used it back then. While it's been produced on a small, artisanal scale, trying to scale up and offer it globally has required massive effort."

The seven-year project turned into reality as Woodside Oils, an essential oil distillery owned and operated by dōTERRA to produce birch essential oil in Kane, Pennsylvania was inaugurated on April 4, 2023.

Tim continues, "We are confident that dōTERRA is the first company in the world to offer truly pure and natural Birch essential oil on a commercial scale. And we're giving back to the community and forest where we're sourcing the raw materials. That's what people want and expect from a dōTERRA product: purity and ethical sourcing."

Added Value

For property owners in northwestern Pennsylvania, birch trees now have added value. dōTERRA has partnered with local sawmills to separate birch trees from premium lumber. Producing birch essential oil from the bark follows a circular economy model, in which all the material remaining after distillation, known as the post-distilled biomass, is reused, leaving zero waste. The pulp can still be used for paper or other products, and the bark can become mulch.

Extracting the essential oil adds another layer of value and profitability for local birch tree owners and demonstrates greater appreciation for and use of the earth's beautiful resources. We never want to waste the gifts nature has given us.

dōTERRA Strategic Sourcing Manager AJ McGarity says, "We started this project almost seven years ago. We've made leaps in progress compared to where we started, and we're excited about the future. We're proud to work primarily with Forest Stewardship Council-certified companies to source our birch bark. We're proud to make wise use of the forest's resources, add incredible value for the forest, and deliver pure Birch essential oil to the world."

Essential Oil Spotlight

Birch

Betula lenta

Distillation Method: Steam

Aromatic Description: Sweet, spicy, minty

Plant Part: Bark

dōTERRA® Birch essential oil comes from the bark of the Betula lenta tree, which is also known as black birch, cherry birch, or sweet birch. Its crisp, minty, invigorating, and refreshing aroma provides a range of powerful benefits. Birch creates a stimulating and uplifting environment when diffused. It can help maintain a healthy-looking complexion when applied topically.

Sourcing pure Birch essential oil can be challenging, but dōTERRA was determined to work with the perfect partner to produce this unique product. Eventually, dōTERRA found a Pennsylvania family who can sustainably produce this amazing essential oil, bringing this family's generations-long knowledge and experience to the world and providing the best Birch in every bottle. Read more about this process in the "Behind the Bottle" feature on page 6.

Fun Fact

The chemical composition of Birch is similar to Wintergreen. Both essential oils contain the same primary chemical constituent: methyl salicylate. In fact, they're both over 95% methyl salicylate!

How to Use

Topical

- + Massage into the back and legs for a cooling sensation after exercising.
- + Apply to the skin to help reduce the appearance of blemishes.

Aromatic

- + Place a few drops on a cotton ball and put in your gym bag to mask odors.
- + Diffuse a drop or two to encourage a stimulating, energizing environment.

The Magic of Microbiomes

Human beings have evolved alongside trillions of tiny organisms called microbes. In fact, scientists estimate there are more microbes in your body as there are human cells!

These microbial communities are called microbiomes. You may have heard about the gut microbiome, but you actually have microbiomes in more than just the digestive system. They exist throughout your body, including the skin, mouth, eyes, ears, nose, lungs, kidneys, urinary tract, reproductive system—basically anywhere that has contact with the outside. Each microbiome communicates with and helps support your cells and vital organs—and ultimately your overall health.

Background

Microbiomes are their own ecosystems. They're sensitive to temperature, pH, nutrients, and environmental influences, just like you. Healthy microbiomes have more good microbes—sometimes called flora—than bad, but there's more to it than just numbers.

For microbiomes to thrive, they also require diversity. Diverse microbiomes are more resilient at handling stressors and adapting quickly to changing circumstances. You need a variety of microbes to process food and supplements, produce important signaling messages, and assist the immune system, among other crucial functions.

We know microbiomes have several critical health functions, including immunity, digestion, energy metabolism, sleep, brain and heart support, and healthy weight maintenance. Multiple studies have shown that an imbalance of good and bad microbes may contribute to weight gain. Having more good microbes is key to a healthy microbiome and weight.

Microbiomes also serve as sensors for your outside environment and as a communication network throughout your body. If you've heard of the gut-brain connection, that's referring to the way your gut microbiome communicates with the brain in what scientists call "bidirectional axes."

There's also a connection between the oral microbiome and brain. Even the gut and skin microbiomes are connected. Effectively, your microbiomes communicate with your tissues and organs and receive information from other microbiomes.

Changes as You Age

Your microbiomes change with age. You underwent rapid development as a baby and toddler, followed by relative stability through most of adulthood. But then marked changes happen again when you're elderly.

One major change is the variety of flora in your microbiomes declines with age. Remember, healthy microbiomes have the proper nutrients, the right mix of bacteria, and the resilience to handle changes. It's important to proactively care for and support your microbiomes so they can do their vital work.

The good news is healthy lifestyle habits promote healthy microbiomes, which in turn support healthy aging. Scientists have discovered gut microbiome patterns are different in elderly adults who exercise and eat well. Those with healthy microbiomes tend to live longer, healthier lives as well!

Super Support

Like almost every aspect of your health, supporting your microbiomes starts with foundational lifestyle choices. Microbiomes are healthiest when you have a balanced diet with a variety of whole foods (especially raw fruits and vegetables and fermented foods like kimchi, sauerkraut, and kefir), move your body daily, get restorative sleep, manage life's stressors, and limit exposure to the sun and harmful toxins.

Microbiomes are healthiest when you have a balanced diet with a variety of whole foods (especially raw fruits and vegetables

With these healthy habits in place, you can receive extra microbiome support from supplementation. dōTERRA PB Restore™ Probiome Complex and PB Assist+® ProBiome Gut Complex have been developed to address this need.* The new dōTERRA PB Restore and PB Assist+ have more genus, species, strains, and pre- and probiotics compared to the previous products. They also have postbiotics and bacteriophages.

dōTERRA PB Restore duocaps have a time-released delivery system designed to support the microbiomes in your body, and PB Assist+ provides extra support to the gut microbiome specifically.* The live cultures in PB Assist+ are microencapsulated, meaning their protective covering allows them to survive the harsh, acidic environment of the stomach so they can reach the gut alive, where the pH level is just right for them to flourish.

Upping the number of genus, species, and strains in these products helps increase the diversity and variety of your microbiomes. Including pre-, pro-, and postbiotics is important for supporting the flora in all stages.

Prebiotics are fibrous nutrients that promote the growth of beneficial microbes—kind of like food for probiotics. Probiotics are beneficial living microorganisms (healthy flora or bacteria) that support and build flourishing flora colonies when ingested. Postbiotics are non-living after-life microbes that transform into metabolites and continue providing multiple benefits. Your body uses postbiotic metabolites to produce a wide range of compounds that support cellular, organ, and general health functions. And bacteriophages are healthy viruses that help support and protect your cells and healthy flora by targeting harmful flora.

Healthy Choices, Happy Microbiomes

Along with directly benefiting your body's microbiomes with dōTERRA PB Restore™ and your gut microbiome with PB Assist®, supplementation can support other foundational aspects of your wellness and lifestyle, positively impacting the state of your microbiomes and general health.*

- The dōTERRA Lifelong Vitality Pack® and dōTERRA Nutrition line are perfect complements to both PB Assist and dōTERRA PB Restore products, supporting the digestive tract and helping you to get the nutrients you need each day to thrive.*
- dōTERRA Serenity® Restful Complex can support you in your efforts to achieve better sleep and rest.*
- Adaptiv® Calming Blend capsules can help you more easily manage occasional, everyday stress.*

Each healthy choice you make helps you and the microscopic communities that are part of you.

Medical Care in Madagascar

At dōTERRA, we believe in the power of one person to change the world. That one inspires another, who then invites and collaborates with another, and it continues to build until one becomes many. When many work collectively toward a shared goal, we can accomplish extraordinary things.

More than 1,300 Ylang Ylang cooperative members—over 400 of them being women—have access to the Magnitry Health Clinic.

By the end of 2022, the clinic had served over 12,000 patients.

The clinic's services include general healthcare consultations, minor care, minor surgeries, pre- and postnatal visits, and more.

Momody Dimitri

Momody Dimitri was washing a glass bottle when it shattered in his hand, leaving him badly injured with a deep cut on his left wrist. Momody works in the Ylang Ylang essential oil distillery in Madagascar, and he worried his injury would affect his work.

He rushed to the Magnitry Health Clinic in Nosy Be, where he received emergency care, including a tourniquet, stitches, and sanitary wound dressing. Momody continued visiting the clinic every two weeks for several months for redressing. Once his wound healed, Momody was able to return to work.

To Western ears, this story might sound unremarkable. Get a cut, stitch it up, and back to normal in no time. But for those in rural Madagascar, healthcare access is limited. Even if they live near a city with a hospital, many Madagascans don't own a car, and the roads aren't always defined or maintained. Even if public transit is available, many people can't afford the travel costs or expensive medical bills. The consequences of limited access to medical care can mean the difference between life and death.

Harvesters and Healthcare

dōTERRA first became aware of this limited healthcare access while looking for a Ylang Ylang essential oil sourcing location in 2014. The hot, wet climate in Nosy

Be—Malagasy for "big island"—is the perfect climate for fast-growing ylang ylang trees.

While scouting the location, Founding Executive Emily Wright observed mothers hard at work picking ylang ylang flowers with babies strapped to their backs. The Sourcing team recognized that bringing dōTERRA to the island would help ensure job security for these mothers and support families with access to medical care.

The dōTERRA Healing Hands Foundation® began immediate fundraising efforts for this new sourcing community. In 2016, after years of dedicated work, the Magnitry Health Clinic, funded by dōTERRA Healing Hands, opened on Nosy Be.

This clinic has midwives, doctors, a nurse, and a pharmacist. This medical team is employed by a local government-owned hospital, but its members dedicate time each week to working in rural settings. dōTERRA Healing Hands also donated a vehicle to serve as a mobile clinic, with one doctor making weekly visits to 10 nearby villages, serving those who can't travel to the clinic.

Magnitry Health Clinic has dramatically improved the standard of living for ylang ylang farmers, harvesters, and distillers, as well as their families, but it was only the first step in a much greater plan to improve healthcare access in this region of the world.

Sustainability Is Key

Given the multiple barriers to quality healthcare for many Madagascans, dōTERRA Healing Hands® and the dōTERRA® Sourcing team sought to remove as many as possible. It was important that they found a way to keep costs for clinic patients as low as possible. Running a free clinic is difficult to sustain, and people also generally want to feel like they're contributing to their own welfare.

For these reasons, members of the Ylang Ylang cooperative pay a small monthly fee to the clinic, which allows them and their immediate family members to receive medical care as needed. dōTERRA Healing Hands subsidizes the clinic, covering any other expenses. These collaborative efforts help the community come together and exercise their individual power of one to support each other.

The Power of One

Much of the work dōTERRA Healing Hands does in the world, like funding a rural health clinic in Madagascar, can feel so distant it hardly seems relevant. But it's you who makes such projects possible.

dōTERRA processes millions of customer orders in just the US every year. If every customer donated even a single dollar with each order, there'd be millions available to better support the farmers, harvesters, and distillers who bring us the essential oils we love. You have the power of one, and you can change the world with it.

Donations to the dōTERRA Healing Hands Foundation® at the time of this publication support the next chapter in the Magnitry Health Clinic story. The clinic has become increasingly busy the last few years and needs additional funding to continue providing medical access for families—especially pregnant women—who wouldn't otherwise have easy access to such care. When you check the donation box with your dōTERRA order, you join our team of Impact Advocates, helping the dōTERRA Healing Hands Foundation support hardworking Madagascan men and women on whom we rely to source Ylang Ylang essential oil.

The next time you get a cut that needs stitches, deliver a baby under the watchful care of a doctor or midwife, or receive a consultation about your body's specific health challenges, remember to be grateful for access to medical providers, equipment, and resources.

If you want to be part of the reason a rural Madagascan experiences that same gratitude, check the donation box with your next dōTERRA order. When we each give a little, we can help a lot.

See solicitation disclosures on page 77.

The dōTERRA[®] Science and Medical Education Committee

Not only are all the committee members Wellness Advocates themselves, but they're also passionate, qualified experts who use their expertise to develop exceptional educational resources.

Comprised of medical, veterinarian, and scientists, the dōTERRA Science and Medical Education Committee was created to bring together the brightest minds in health and wellness to provide top-tier education. The committee includes professionals in dentistry, dermatology, family medicine, obstetrics and gynecology, integrative medicine, and more.

Not only are all the committee members Wellness Advocates themselves, but they're also passionate, qualified experts who use their expertise to develop exceptional educational resources. The committee meets several times a month to review current research, discuss products, and offer insights that help dōTERRA remain a leader in essential oils and holistic education.

Dr. Amy Wolthoff, MD
Dermatology

Dr. Amy Wolthoff grew up in Grapevine, Texas. In 2009, she received her doctor of medicine from the University of Texas Health Science Center in San Antonio. She completed her internship year in internal medicine at Texas Health Resources Presbyterian Hospital in Dallas.

She then joined the Department of Dermatology at the Texas Tech Health Science Center in Lubbock. There, Amy received the Resident Leadership Award, which recognizes superior leadership qualities, professionalism, teamwork, and dedication in the residency program. She also completed her dermatology board exam and became board-certified in July 2013.

Since starting her private practice in Dallas, Amy has been given many awards and recognitions from her patients and peers, including being one of the three best-rated dermatologists in Dallas in 2016, a Texas rising stars from 2014 to 2017, one of the top 10 doctors in 2015, the most compassionate doctor from 2013 to 2017, and a recipient of the Patient's Choice Award from 2013 to 2017.

Dr. Andrew Gough, DO
Emergency Medicine

Dr. Andrew Gough was born and raised in England by parents who practiced medicine and believed in the effectiveness of alternative solutions. He completed a sports science degree from Chelmsford

College before moving to the US, where he studied psychology and chemistry at BYU-Idaho, graduating with honors. Andrew graduated from Andrew Taylor Still University—the founding school of osteopathic medicine—and completed his residency in emergency medicine at the St. Joseph hospital system in Detroit, Michigan.

Andrew currently practices emergency medicine at Sanford Hospital in Aberdeen, South Dakota. He's passionate about learning, studying, and educating people about the many health benefits of dōTERRA essential oils and natural products. He regularly shares how they've blessed his family and continue bringing hope and wellness to so many people worldwide.

Dr. Ashley Anderson, PhD, WHNP-BC
Women's Health

Dr. Ashley Anderson received a master of science in nursing with a women's health nurse practitioner specialty in 2008, a certificate in health professionals education in 2012, and a doctor of philosophy in nursing in 2016—all from the University of Louisville. She received her bachelor of science in nursing from Berea College in 2005.

Ashley was a record-holding team captain for Berea College's women's basketball team. She participated in beauty pageants for additional scholarship opportunities as she pursued her education. She won Miss Kentucky in 2013, Miss Black Ohio in 2010, and Miss University of Louisville in 2008.

Ashley is the founder and CEO of Athena Health and Wellness, a first-of-its-kind women's health practice in Louisville, Kentucky. In 2020, she partnered with dōTERRA and launched an essential oil business to promote natural health options in the Western realm of traditional care. She's a family-planning specialist, trained researcher, author, certified health science educator, community activist, international runway model, actress, radio personality, and motivational speaker.

Dr. Chris Spelman, DDS
Dentistry

Dr. Chris M. Spelman is a general dentist with a private practice in New Jersey, which offers a full scope of dental services. He graduated with honors from the University of Maryland in 2001.

Chris is a member of the Academy of General Dentistry. He studies essential oils extensively and uses them regularly in his practice. He's passionate about educating both his patients and colleagues about the importance of living a wellness-based lifestyle. Chris's goal as a dentist is to help people achieve optimal oral health through expert dental care in the best way possible.

Chris and his wife, Jamie, have two children. When he's not in the office, Chris enjoys family activities, hunting, fishing, camping, and exercising.

Dr. Gregory Woodfill, DO
Obstetrics and Gynecology

Dr. Gregory L. Woodfill is a board-certified obstetrician and gynecologist. He completed his medical training at the Michigan State University (MSU) College of Osteopathic Medicine in 1997 and completed his residency there in 2001. He was elected chief resident from 2000 to 2001 and educated medical students as a clinical faculty member from 1998 to 2002.

Upon completing his residency, Gregory developed the women's health program at the Virginia College of Osteopathic Medicine and served as department chairman of obstetrics and gynecology from 2001 to 2008. He previously served as department chairman at Wythe County Community Hospital and division chief at Wilmington Health Associates. He currently lives in Manitowoc, Michigan, where he offers a full scope of services, emphasizing minimally invasive office procedures, advanced laparoscopy, and urogynecology.

Dr. Jessica Herzog, MD, FAAP, ABOIM
Integrative and Functional Medicine

Dr. Jessica Herzog is dual board-certified and completed her undergraduate degree, medical doctorate, and pediatric residency at the University of Maryland. During her studies, she participated in research teams at the National Institutes of Health and the University of Maryland.

She started her career as a pediatric hospitalist, serving in Maryland, Utah, and Pennsylvania. For the last decade, Jessica has exclusively focused on natural solutions, acknowledging time-honored herbal and essential oil traditions. She's also a champion of cutting-edge health technologies that stimulate cellular energy and pair perfectly with traditional approaches.

Jessica is a leader and teacher in the field of natural health. She is the founder of Blue Pebble Health, an integrative and functional medicine center in Utah and Pennsylvania. She uses essential oils daily as part of her personal routine, taking them internally (her go-to method), diffusing, and applying topically.

Dr. Katherine Igah-Phillips, MD, MHA
Integrative Medicine

Dr. Katherine Igah-Phillips—affectionately known as Dr. K—is an award-winning international speaker and holistic humanitarian.

She focuses on the power of mental, physical, emotional, and spiritual wellness. She received her master of healthcare administration (MHA) from Walden University and doctor of medicine (MD) from Xavier University.

Dr. K's private integrative medicine practice offers her community holistic, natural, and authentic solutions, delivered by a team of like-minded practitioners. She also offers a virtual mentorship program for personal development and elevation of consciousness. Dr. K maximizes her life's purpose by providing people with necessary tools and coaching to access genuine wellness, holistic elevation, and a fulfilling reality.

Meet the dōTERRA[®] Veterinarian Education Committee

Meet the doctors behind our Veterinarian Education Committee. This group is part of the Science and Medical Education Committee, which consists of certified doctors, scientists, and veterinarians.

These professionals contribute their expertise to educational resources, particularly with essential oils and animals. As both Wellness Advocates and certified veterinarians, the committee members bring their passion for animals, veterinarian work, and essential oils, while also advising on matters that impact both dōTERRA and essential oil industry.

Dr. Janet Roark, DVM

Dr. Janet Roark is a veterinarian and the proud owner of Hill Country Mobile Veterinary Service in Austin, Texas. She triple-majored in biology, equestrian studies, and pre-veterinary medicine at the University of Findlay in Ohio, along with minoring in chemistry. Afterward, she graduated from Michigan State University's College of Veterinary Medicine in 2005.

Janet began using essential oils for her health while facing struggles related to occasional stress. She then used them in her veterinarian practice six months later. She now specializes in integrating acupuncture and essential oils alongside traditional modalities.

Essential oils changed Janet's life forever, and she's made it her mission to educate people all over the world regarding the safe, effective use of dōTERRA essential oils with animals.

Dr. Janis Fisher, DVM, CVA, CCRT, CAC

Dr. Janis Fisher is a graduate of the Atlantic Veterinary College of Prince Edward Island, Canada. Early in her career, she realized she wanted to take a more holistic approach to well-being. Janis became a certified veterinary acupuncturist through the International Veterinary Acupuncture Society in 2005.

Since then, her practice has included both acupuncture and traditional Chinese herbal therapy. She's also a certified canine rehabilitation therapist and animal chiropractor.

A desire for natural solutions led Janis to dōTERRA essential oils. After witnessing the benefits of essential oils in her home, she integrated them into her veterinary practice. She diffuses essential oils in her office daily, and she enjoys educating colleagues on their benefits for animal patients.

Dr. Jeanette Yamamoto, DVM

Dr. Jeanette Yamamoto earned her bachelor's degree in animal science in 1997 and her doctorate in veterinary medicine in 2002 from Oklahoma State University.

Returning to her home in California after graduation, Jeanette completed a small-animal internship and worked as a senior emergency and critical care clinician at the Animal Specialty and Emergency Center in Los Angeles until 2012.

In 2011, Jeanette established Peaceful Pets In-Home Euthanasia Services to ensure comfortable passings for dogs and cats in her area. She expanded her practice, incorporating hospice and palliative care as she focused her energy on her business full-time. Jeanette earned her veterinary hospice and palliative care certification in October 2020.

She was introduced to dōTERRA essential oils in December 2014, soon after becoming a Wellness Advocate and incorporating essential oils into her general practice and in-home euthanasia service. Essential oils have influenced many of her patients' quality of life and become an important part of her practice.

Jeanette resides in Santa Clarita Valley with her husband, Jeremy, and their two wonderful children, Ellee and Justin. They have a cat (Boxsie), a pit bull mix (Bella), a Yorkie mix (Phoebe), and a miniature pinscher mix (Zero).

Dr. Larry McCaskill, DVM, CVA, CVCH, CVFT, CVTP, CTCVMP

Dr. Larry McCaskill grew up in rural Central, Louisiana, on the outskirts of Baton Rouge. He attended Louisiana State University (LSU), completing his undergraduate. He was commissioned as a second lieutenant in the United States Air Force (USAF) in January 1970, becoming a fighter pilot and serving until August 1977, after which he entered the LSU School of Veterinary Medicine.

While in veterinary school, Larry joined the USAF Reserves, continuing his flying career part-time. He maintained dual careers as a practicing veterinarian and pilot for 29 years! He's a combat veteran of both Vietnam and the Gulf War. Larry graduated in May 1981 and opened the McCaskill Veterinary Hospital—a mixed animal practice in New Roads, Louisiana—in August of the same year.

His study of veterinary acupuncture and Traditional Chinese Veterinary Medicine (TCVM) began at the Chi Institute in Reddick, Florida. He's earned multiple certifications, becoming a certified veterinarian assistant (CVA) in March 2009 and now a TCVM practitioner (CTCVMP). He loves promoting TCVM in worldwide presentations and mentoring students who are learning veterinary acupuncture. Larry has incorporated dōTERRA essential oil applications into his care for small-animal patients. He resides in Oscar, Louisiana, by False River with his wife, Lu, and their yellow Labrador, Cakki. They have two children, Matt and Megan, and five grandchildren. (CTCVMP).

Dr. Mia Frezzo, DVM

Dr. Mia Frezzo is a veterinarian, wife, and mother of three young children who resides in northern New Jersey. Her passion for veterinary medicine was initiated and fostered by her uncle—also a veterinarian. Mia studied and worked with her uncle from the age of 14. She graduated from Ohio State University's College of Veterinary Medicine in 1998, returning home after graduation.

She's the owner and medical director of the Animal Hospital of Hasbrouck Heights. Mia's patients are primarily dogs and cats, and they benefit greatly from her holistic and traditional approach, which emphasizes dōTERRA essential oils, natural health, and proactive care.

Mia became convinced of the power of essential oils through her personal experiences using them with her family. These experiences changed her approach to patient care.

Since her first encounter with essential oils, she's proudly and confidently spoken in support of dōTERRA essential oils and natural solutions with her family, friends, and clients. Mia has turned her experiences with essential oils into a book: SpOil Your Pet: A Practical Guide to Using Essential Oils in Dogs and Cats.

Cardamom

Elettaria cardamomum

Distillation Method: Steam distillation

Aromatic Description: Spicy, fruity, warm, balsamic

Plant Part: Seed

A close relative to ginger, cardamom is known as an expensive, exquisite cooking spice. Native to Southeast Asia, cardamom is added to traditional Indian sweets and teas for its cool, minty aroma and flavor.

Cardamom essential oil is commonly used internally to benefit the digestive system and help soothe occasional stomach discomfort.* Ingested Cardamom also has profound effects on the respiratory system because of its high 1,8-Cineole content, which promotes clear breathing and respiratory health.* The distinct scent can promote a positive atmosphere.

The cardamom seeds are grown in Guatemala and Honduras, and dōTERRA extracts their essential oil using our strict CPTG Certified Pure Tested Grade® standard. Through collaborative and responsible sourcing partnerships, we can have a significant impact on the lives of local farmers and distillers, ensuring the farming communities enjoy improved livelihoods.

Fun Fact

Cardamom essential oil is produced from seed pods, which typically contain 10–20 seeds per pod. These pods are dried for 36 hours and then sold either as a spice or for distillation.

How to Use

Topical

- + Apply one to two drops to the desired area. Dilute with a carrier oil to minimize any skin sensitivity.

Internal

- + Dilute one drop in four ounces of liquid.

Aromatic

- + Use three to four drops in the diffuser of your choice.

“Your home is an extension of your energy field. This is why practices like cleaning your home, rearranging furniture, organizing your closet, and getting rid of objects that are cluttering your space can have a profound impact on your own mind, body, and spirit.”

Becoming

Always aim to see potential, strength, and love within yourself, even amid struggles and doubts. Inner strength and beauty are what create light and confidence on the outside.

You want to become something more. It's the process of becoming that matters. How often do you stop and reflect on the journey and celebrate the wins, big or small? Give yourself permission to appreciate what you've accomplished along the way.

Becoming is the process of growing into something new. Take a moment to reflect on what that means to you. Who do you need to become for yourself, your business, your family, and your friends?

You want to become something more. It's the process of becoming that matters.

Comfortable, but Not Too Comfortable

You've accomplished a goal and are now sitting confident and comfortable in your new and better. Well, don't get too comfortable in your comfort zone. When you find yourself sinking into that lounge chair, here's a gentle reminder to make changes and set new goals, enriching your life with even bigger dreams!

Stay comfortably seated, but now sit and reflect. Create a tranquil environment by diffusing dōTERRA Peace®, Copaiba, dōTERRA Balance®, or whatever product sets the mood for you. Take out a journal and write. Pick a word that represents your journey to become. Then write what excites you. Find a specific goal that's achievable yet still stretching. Consider those who can be your cheerleaders and mentors during the becoming process.

After this reflective session, take a deep breath and apply dōTERRA® Adaptiv® to promote a relaxing environment. Remember, you're capable of more than you know.

It's a Journey, Not a Destination

A poem by Chrétien de Troyes tells of the mythical tale of a boy named Percival and his search for the Holy Grail. Percival goes on a great quest, leaving his home and all he knows behind. On his quest, he discovers what it means to be an adult—to fall in love, experience radical emotions, and take on enormous responsibility.

Percival then finds himself at the Grail Castle and meets the king. He'd been instructed by a mentor to ask an important question when he found the castle: "Whom does the Grail serve?" Doing so would save the entire kingdom from poverty and despair and fulfill Percival's hopes and dreams. However, Percival fails to ask, and the castle disappears.

Knowing he's failed, Percival sets out to find the castle again. The journey takes many years. Along the way, he's confronted by two people: the hideous damsel and the hermit, who criticize his faults and failures.

Percival felt destroyed. Stripped of all external notions of what makes him a man, he must focus on what's within. After years of searching, the hermit finally gives Percival directions back to the castle.

And that's it. The story ends. The journey was the point.

The process of becoming is the reward. Think about a significant goal you've had. How many small goals were achieved? How many mistakes were made before you reached your target? The feelings of self-confidence, accomplishment, gratitude, and fulfillment that were gained happened because of the journey.

Celebrate the Process

Becoming the person you want to be is a journey. Celebrate every goal reached, every hurdle overcome, and every lesson learned.

Take on this challenge as you look in the mirror each morning. See the potential. See the strength. Love yourself, and you'll see whom you're becoming day by day.

Shear Spirit

Meet Sally Hsu, a passionate hairstylist, devoted daughter, and dōTERRA® Platinum Wellness Advocate.

Sally was born in Taiwan, and at the age of 10 she moved to Argentina with her mother, where she learned Spanish. While they lived in Argentina, Sally was introduced to hairstyling, apprenticing to her mother. She learned the trade, especially how to be a friend to customers and understand what they really need. Her mother taught her how to make customers feel beautiful with her hands and good pair of shears.

Sally's education continued there until she was 18, when she and her mother moved back to Taiwan. Mother and child built a strong relationship working side by side, and a few years later they decided to make their next big move: across the ocean to California. The spirit, courage, and determination she learned from her mother paved the way for Sally to learn a third language and the culture of yet another country.

Things seemed to come full circle. By the time she was 22, Sally had her own hair salon and hired her mother. The two women worked together tirelessly, building a new clientele and community. She now sees multigenerational customers—families who came to her salon over 25 years ago and have since referred their mothers, daughters, grandmothers, and grandchildren. Sally has become "Auntie Sally" to so many people because of the community she's created.

A Daughter's Loss

Sadly, her mother passed away in 2006. Sally continues passionately running her salon, keeping the connection with her mother alive. Without the years of learning at her mother's side, she wouldn't have been able to build the salon or community she has today.

A few years ago, while trying to improve customer experience, Sally contemplated ways to help her clients feel even more welcome. Her first thought was to improve the salon's smell, which was overwhelmingly chemical.

Sally set out to change that. She and her partner decided to diffuse Wild Orange essential oil. Her customers loved the change so much they wanted to give Sally a gift. Sally said, "Don't buy us flowers. Buy us more essential oil, but we only want dōTERRA." The next thing she and her partner knew, they had 15 bottles of Wild Orange!

Opportunity Out of Opposition

A few years ago, Sally was presented with an interesting opportunity to really study and research essential oils. Prior to her introduction to dōTERRA, Sally offered a scalp treatment at her salon. She's always wanted to give her customers the best experience and care possible.

After better educating herself on dōTERRA essential oils, she decided to reduce the number of commercial chemicals she used and incorporated more natural dōTERRA products. This product expansion let her customize the ingredients in her scalp treatment to the needs of her customers. Her go-to essential oils are Lavender, Frankincense, and Cedarwood. The effects of her adjustments are noticeable. Opportunities to continually improve outcomes and experiences are why Sally loves what she does.

Sally lives an honest life based on community and family. She loves being true to herself and others. Providing nature-based options for clients gives deeper meaning to her relationships and truly creates the community she began so many years ago with her mother. The strength Sally feels from her daily sheer interactions with customers keeps her mother's spirit alive.

Essential Oil Spotlight

Wild Orange

Citrus sinensis

Distillation Method: Cold-pressed/expressed

Aromatic Description: Sweet, fresh, citrus

Plant Part: Orange rinds (peel)

Do you feel sluggish in the morning and need an energizing aroma before heading off to work? Need a refresh to help you start on your next project? Want your kitchen to smell like an enlivening orange grove instead of stale refrigerator leftovers? The solution to these problems is Wild Orange essential oil! We could all use a pick-me-up now and again, and this powerful citrus oil can help clear away the clouds, no matter what the day holds. With a bright, cheery aroma and cleansing properties when used topically, Wild Orange could be the energizing aromatic boost to your day.

Wild Orange helps support digestion and a healthy inflammatory response when ingested.* Plus, the refreshing citrus aroma lends itself to transforming any dreary atmosphere into one of energy, happiness, and hope. Whether you love the extra citrusy sweetness, feel like your environment is lacking enthusiasm, or just want to add some brightness to your day, Wild Orange essential oil is here for you.

Fun Fact

Since ancient times and across many cultures, orange trees have been a symbol of love and marriage.

How to Use dōTERRA Wild Orange

Topical

- + Place two drops on your palms, rub them together, and inhale deeply for an energizing boost.
- + Add a few drops to a spray bottle with water, spritz over countertops, and wipe down for a clean surface.

Internal

- + Add a drop to your water every day for a burst of flavor and to promote overall health.*
- + Place a drop in a Veggie Cap and swallow to help support digestion.*

Aromatic

- + Diffuse for a sweet aroma as you're getting ready in the morning.
- + Before company arrives, diffuse to create a fresh and inviting environment in your home.

Citrus oils can cause photosensitivity, so we don't recommend using them if you plan to be in direct sunlight or UV rays within 12 hours after topical application.

THE Perfect Present

When your children rush out the door in the morning, you can be physically present with backpacks and sack lunches, but as the list of today's tasks runs through your head, you're mentally somewhere else.

Balancing day-to-day responsibilities with being mentally present is a struggle we all face. Yet, shutting out the mental noise and truly engaging in the moment with the people around you can be the greatest gift you give yourself and others.

It can feel impossible to be fully, perfectly present in every moment. At a family gathering, you might scroll through social media or check a phone alert when there's a conversational lull. Your thoughts wander to, say, grocery lists or other errands while your kids enthusiastically show you the building block set they built.

Though physically present, your heart and mind are distant. With a constant stream of to-dos and notifications, you can miss opportunities to connect with the people who matter most.

Think about what your time and attention. What do they reflect about you? If someone asked you what the most important thing in your life is, your answer would surely include the people you love, like your spouse, parents, children, siblings, and best friends. At your core, you want to be there for them. You yearn for moments when you can be present and not worry about other troubles or responsibilities, but sometimes those moments seem more like a pipe dream than a possibility.

Here's the truth: being fully present is possible. It just takes a shift in perspective, a conscious refocusing of attention, and added support from dōTERRA Balance® or dōTERRA Cheer® throughout the day.

Studies have shown dedicated time with each child positively affects emotional and cognitive development.

To cultivate presence, approach everyday activities with renewed intention. Say you invite a friend out for lunch. Before lunch, create a to-do list of what you need to accomplish that day, mentally putting each post-lunch item on hold while you're away. When you arrive, set your phone to "Do Not Disturb" to avoid distractions. Concentrate wholeheartedly on what your friend is saying and genuinely interact, giving compliments and feedback and really meaning what you say.

After lunch, pick up where you left off with your tasks. By prioritizing presence, you create stronger emotional connections and relationships and enhance your overall productivity and focus throughout the day.

There'll always be bills to pay, meals to prepare, lawns to mow, and homework to oversee. A suggestion for any distracted parent is to spend three fully present minutes with each child when he or she first wakes, three after coming home from school, and three at bedtime.

Studies have shown dedicated time with each child positively affects emotional and cognitive development. Listening to tales of the day gives you insight into your children's time away from home. And tucking your kids in at night can be soothing for both of you.

A helpful way to be present for others is to first be present for yourself. Whether it's in the early morning hours when the house has a rare state of stillness or at bedtime after you've tucked in the last sleepy child, set aside time for personal reflection. Set the scene with Lavender or dōTERRA Adaptiv® so you transport yourself to peace of mind. Put your phone on silent, close the door, and ease into the soothing aromas of essential oils. Reflect on the accomplishments of your day. Give yourself praise for each win and then set new goals for tomorrow.

By inviting presence into your life and the lives of those you love, you can nurture your relationships, find fulfillment, and create more meaningful connections. Being fully present all the time is challenging, but it's a worthy pursuit.

Just imagine the impact when you give your undivided attention to your loved ones, listening to them and showing genuine interest. Picture the joy that comes from setting aside distractions and immersing yourself in shared experiences.

Let's prioritize the present moment, cherishing those who matter most and savoring the beauty of each passing day. Remember, being present isn't a luxury. It's a gift we can give yourself and everyone around you.

“I have not failed. I’ve just found
10,000 ways that won’t work.”

Roasted Butternut Squash Soup

Ingredients:

3-pound butternut squash
Olive oil
1 large yellow onion
1 large carrot
1 teaspoon minced garlic
1 tablespoon maple syrup
1 teaspoon salt

Rosemary essential oil

Ginger essential oil

Spanish Sage essential oil

Black Pepper essential oil

4 cups vegetable broth

½ cup heavy cream

Garnish: Sour cream and roasted squash seeds

Instructions:

1. Preheat the oven to 400°F.
2. Slice the squash in half lengthwise and remove its seeds and membrane.
3. Place the squash on a baking dish—cut side facing up—brush with olive oil, sprinkle with salt, and roast for 30 minutes.
4. Remove the outer layers of the onion and quarter. Clean and rough chop the carrot, setting aside.
5. After the squash has roasted, brush the onion and carrot with olive oil and place in the baking dish with the squash. Continue cooking for 20 minutes. (If the squash needs to cook more, remove the onion and carrot and return the squash into the oven until tender. Take out of the oven and let cool.)
6. Scoop out the squash flesh and transfer to a blender along with the onion, carrot, and minced garlic, blending on high until smooth. Pour the mixture into a stock pot and slowly incorporate the maple syrup, vegetable broth, heavy cream, and salt. Simmer over medium heat.
7. Add one drop of Ginger and Black Pepper essential oils.
8. Dip two toothpicks into your bottles of Rosemary and Spanish Sage and insert the toothpicks into the soup, stirring.
9. Add additional essential oils and salt to taste.
Caution: A little essential oil goes a long way, especially with recipes. Add deliberately.
10. Pour the soup into bowls and top with roasted squash seeds and sour cream.

Chocolate Chip Nut Butter Cookies

Ingredients:

15-ounce can chickpeas, rinsed and drained

$\frac{3}{4}$ cup flour

$\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon baking soda

$\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon salt

$\frac{1}{2}$ cup maple syrup or honey

$\frac{1}{3}$ cup nut butter

5 drops Madagascar Vanilla absolute

1 drop Cinnamon Bark essential oil

$\frac{1}{2}$ cup shredded coconut

$\frac{1}{2}$ cup chocolate chips

Instructions:

1. Preheat the oven to 350°F.
2. Line a baking sheet with parchment paper and set aside.
3. Place the chickpeas in a food processor and blend until smooth.
4. Add the flour, baking soda, salt, maple syrup, nut butter, Madagascar Vanilla absolute and Cinnamon Bark essential oil to the food processor and mix into the chickpeas until combined.
5. Transfer the batter to a separate bowl, add the coconut and chocolate chips, and stir by hand until incorporated.
6. Using a cookie scoop or spoon, drop onto the prepared baking sheet.
7. Bake at 350°F for 13 minutes or until lightly browned.
8. Allow the cookies to cool on the baking sheet.

Note: The cookies will appear underbaked but will firm up as they cool.

One More Sleep

They've counted down the days to holiday break since school started...

You've gathered clothes for every day, all tightly packed in weathered luggage that's sitting by the door. Next up are diapers, wipes, road trip snacks, and ingredients to make your famous sweet potato pie when you arrive. Don't forget Mr. Cuddles—the baby won't sleep without him! Bags full of books, crayons, paper, and other treasures have been carefully packed and placed at the foot of beds before their owners excitedly jumped in to rest the night before. Now here you are, awake at dawn to load the car, and you wonder to yourself, "Where did I put the kitchen sink?"

No matter their age, kids can feel overwhelmed when traveling, and remembering your difficult past experiences might make you want to just stay home rather than star in what can feel like a three-ring circus act. Even with months of planning and preparing for every outcome, your routine and your children's routines will be disrupted by travel. Having some tried-and-true basics at the ready can help you handle the unexpected and keep everyone in a good place.

Planes, Trains, and Automobiles

You know your destination, so getting there's the rest of the battle. Make room for your Volo® Diffuser and then pack dōTERRA® Adaptiv® or Calmer® to apply to the soles of feet or wrists to promote a relaxed and calm atmosphere.

Early morning or late-night travel can give drivers or pilots a head start while little ones sleep. Add to the calm environment with Lavender essential oil, placed in a portable or passive diffuser or in a roller bottle. When you're traveling by air, binkies and bottles or sippy cups are crucial for takeoff and landing to equalize air pressure in the ears. Try to avoid heavy toys and sippy cups when traveling by car because they could cause injury if there were an accident.

To help younger children stay entertained, visit your local discount store for inexpensive items like books, stickers, and small, lightweight toys. Create levels of emergency interest for when kids get antsy:

1. Book

2. Toy

3. Fun snack

4. Crazy collection

keychain of random objects (cooking spoons, keys, and such)

5. Screentime

Older children can typically manage their emotions during change, but a new book or special snack may help ease any tensions. A travel game or favorite movie is an effective option when you need to bring the whole family out of a stressful situation or maintain a level of calm while traveling.

Good Night, Sweetheart

Sleeping in a new room can be scary for young ones and difficult at any age. dōTERRA Serenity® Restful Blend encourages a restful environment, helping everyone be ready for the next day's excitement, which in combination with dōTERRA Serenity Stick + Valerian serves as a natural calming aroma at bedtime.

For the adults in your travel group, prepare for another day on the road by supporting your sleep with the reformulated dōTERRA Serenity Restful Complex Softgels. These softgels combine Lavender essential oil and natural plant extracts like tart cherry, which contains naturally occurring melatonin.

Ready, Set, Go!

Supporting the well-being of little ones greatly improves everyone's overall experience. Travel means new people, places, and events. Kids learn so much through touch and embrace every opportunity to do so.

dōTERRA On Guard® Hand Sanitizing Gel will keep those little hands clean so they can keep exploring and creating memories. dōTERRA On Guard Sanitizing Hand Wipes are the perfect tool for on-the-go parents. Wiping hands after touching tray tables, dropped sippy cups, door handles, or rental cars will help keep hands clean throughout your trip. And don't forget to pack dōTERRA On Guard Hand Sanitizing Mist.

Before you hit the road, make sure you have a bottle of Tamer® Digestive Blend in your bag. Tamer is a synergistic blend of essential oils perfect for providing a soothing sensation to skin and a calming aroma. You're ready, so pack your bags, fill up the tank, and let Grandma know you're on your way.

Deep Sleep Is Calling with dōTERRA Serenity[®]

When combined with good sleep habits, the dōTERRA Serenity Sleep System—dōTERRA Serenity Restful Blend, dōTERRA Serenity Stick + Valerian, and dōTERRA Serenity Restful Complex Softgels—prepares you and your family for deep, restful sleep in no time.

Ready, Set . . .

You may be familiar with this dilemma. You committed to a diet, shopped for healthy foods, and a week later tossed the rotten vegetables into the garbage and ordered takeout—again. We’ve been there. Different foods, diet trends, information (good and bad), and stationary busy days make finding solutions you can stick with feel both important and impossible.

Water Works

We all want to prioritize overall health and healthy eating. Your individual motivation may be different, but Shantel suggests the starting line should be the same: drink water and move at least 10 minutes a day. She says, “I know it sounds small and may seem pointless, but just 10 minutes of effort can have some of the greatest ripple effects.”

If you’re wondering why Shantel starts with water instead of food, she explains, “Water aids in vitamin and nutrient absorption and allows you to digest your food better. Oftentimes when you have cravings or are feeling sleepy, it’s your body’s way of telling you to drink water.

“After exercising when you feel that muscle fatigue, you think you’re just not in good shape, but it’s actually a fueling issue—and usually it’s water.” Adding a few drops of Lemon essential oil to your water can naturally cleanse the body and aid in digestion.*

Meal Plans

You've been consistent with 10 minutes of movement and drinking water, so now you're ready to focus on food. What you eat shapes who you are. Whether it's intuitive eating, keto, whole foods, or something else, being prepared is the best way to succeed.

Meal planning is the simplest way to ensure your body receives the nutrients it needs. Jen says, "Deciding meals in advance—accounting for your schedule, what's in your pantry, and what's on the grocery list—takes the weight off your shoulders when your stomach starts growling. Prepare vegetables, fruits, and protein so they're readily available. They'll become your staple.

"Listen to your body when it tells you what it needs. If you're gravitating toward particular foods, then you probably need the vitamins and minerals they offer. It's exciting when you make those brain and body connections and realize what your body's telling you."

When so many tasks demand your attention, it's difficult to stop and give your body the mindfulness it deserves. Shantel encourages you to be kind to yourself in those moments. "We often put the blame on ourselves and say, 'If I had more willpower or cared more, then I wouldn't want ice cream right now.' We beat ourselves up for not being more intuitive. We don't know why we're craving an orangesicle over an orange."

Your body needs lean protein, plant-based carbs, and healthy fats. From there, you can experiment, based on your lifestyle and meal plans. Incorporate dōTERRA® Fiber into a hummus recipe and pair it with carrots, chicken, and salad. If your breakfast of choice is oatmeal, add a scoop of dōTERRA Vanilla Protein and fresh berries one morning and then dōTERRA Chocolate Protein and almonds the next.

Too much restriction can be a bad thing, and food is no exception. When you go out, plan for your favorite chocolate cake by first fueling your body with lean protein, steamed vegetables, and plenty of water. It's possible to plan for and enjoy a delicious dessert and then continue with your plan the next day. The key is thinking of your efforts as a lifestyle, not a diet.

Supplementation

Jen iterates the importance of supplementation with meal planning. She considers herself different from diet coaches who say if you focus on what you eat, everything else will be taken care of. "Maybe that was true in the 1960s, but it's not true now," Jen says. "You really need to pair whole foods with additional vitamins and minerals to ensure your body gets everything it needs."

The dōTERRA Lifelong Vitality Pack® (LLV) contains vitamins, minerals, and nutrients that help your body do everything it's made to do on a cellular level.* According to Jen, "Omegas are like engine oil—they keep things moving in your body. xEO Mega®, a product in LLV, is a great source of engine oil."

You can help curb your hunger cravings—avoiding excess trips to the pantry— and support a healthy metabolism by taking dōTERRA MetaPWR® Metabolic Blend internally with your water or taking the softgels daily.* MetaPWR Advantage has nine unique collagen types, which support healthy bone function; improve skin elasticity, density, and firmness; and support lean muscle and connective tissue.* MetaPWR Assist may lead to lower post-meal blood glucose levels, slowing the absorption of simple carbohydrates and sugars, aiding your metabolism.*

Start Today

It's easy to be overwhelmed by the constant messaging about health and dieting. If the only thing you do today is replace a sugary beverage with a glass of water, then you're one step closer to your goal. The important thing is you start, no matter how small.

Advice from Dad

The most treasured advice many people receive in life comes from their father or grandfather. Here are a few of our favorites.

A Penny for Your Thoughts

Save for a rainy day. While it's one of the most basic pieces of financial advice, it's foundational for a reason. The monetary choices you make today will determine your tomorrow.

Ideally, you should have enough money in an emergency fund for three to six months of living expenses. You won't get there overnight, so map out what you're going to set aside to build your savings and watch them grow.

Another foundational skill to develop is understanding your wants versus your needs. It seems simple, but a want can quickly seem like a need when you really want it to be. Of course, there's room for wants when needs are met, but you need to keep the distinction clear so you can practice discipline and moderation in your spending. Don't let short-term wants damage your long-term financial goals.

While the stereotypical cheap dad shows value in thrift and frugality, you can also benefit from the fatherly advice of getting what you pay for. Invest in worthwhile things you need to last. Sometimes spending a little more up front can save you a great deal of money and headache going forward. Do your homework to determine what's worth investing more, which might mean saving up and waiting before you can buy.

How dōTERRA Can Help

- dōTERRA® essential oils are potent and pure, which means you only need to use one or two drops at a time. They last longer and are more effective and safer than synthetic or adulterated oils.
- Peppermint essential oil creates an energizing, clear atmosphere for you to focus on your goals and objectives.
- Patchouli and Sandalwood essential oils cultivate a calming, grounded environment for meditation and clear thinking.
- Eucalyptus essential oil creates a calm atmosphere during stressful circumstances.
- Save on spending with the Refer-a-Friend program. Wholesale customers, you can share the products you love with friends, and anytime someone uses your link to make an initial dōTERRA purchase, you earn dōTERRA dollars. You can spend your dollars on products, shipping, and more on doterra.com. See page 70 to learn more.

Up in Arms

You've heard the expression never go to bed angry. Bedtime is the most difficult time of day to resolve conflicts because that's when your brain is tired, and your emotions and patience are worn out. It isn't the right time for calm and clear conflict resolution.

Instead, take some time to cool down before trying to solve a problem. A little time brings feelings from hot to warm, which can help a disagreement be more peaceful and productive. If it's bedtime, try an all-night break. Sleep and see if your perspective changes in the morning.

How dōTERRA Can Help

- Apply Rose Touch to your wrists and pulse points for a soft, harmonious, and calming aroma.
- The sharp, bright scent of Peppermint Touch can help shift the atmosphere. When you're trying to cool down, this essential oil literally cools the skin!

Go for It

As legendary Babe Ruth said, "Don't let the fear of striking out keep you from playing the game." Be it your dad, grandpa, or another father figure, you've had someone encourage you to be courageous and bold when pursuing your goals and trying new things.

Overcoming fear and stepping out of your comfort zone is a lifelong pursuit. It's so worth it when you experience the sense of accomplishment that comes from conquering a challenge or the positive feeling of giving it your best shot even when it doesn't happen, because at least you didn't let fear keep you from trying.

How dōTERRA Can Help

- The above advice aligns with the spirit of dōTERRA Motivate® Encouraging Blend. Bring its fresh, bright aroma with you on your next daunting endeavor.
- When diffused, Spanish Sage essential oil may create a stimulating atmosphere that's supportive of memory and cognitive performance. When taken internally, it supports a calm mind and sense of alertness.*
- Cardamom and Ylang Ylang essential oils create a positive, calming atmosphere with their distinct scents.
- The Adaptiv® line (Adaptiv Calming Blend, Adaptiv Touch, and Adaptiv Capsules) can be great tools as you navigate life's stressful moments.

dōTERRA®

Most people know dōTERRA simply as an essential oil company. But to truly understand who we are and what we do, look to our purpose:

- We intentionally source the gifts of the earth, enriching every life we touch.
- We empower people and communities in their pursuit of self-reliance.
- We break cycles of human suffering and poverty as our business expands.
- We advocate and educate to empower everyone with natural wellness solutions.
- We advance science for the innovative use of essential oils.

dōTERRA was founded with the bold commitment to sell only pure essential oils. As we rapidly expanded, traditional suppliers told us we couldn't maintain our growth without resorting to extended or adulterated oils. But we refused to compromise on quality. Instead, we began sourcing essential oils directly. We set up long-term relationships with farmers and distillers, building our Global Botanical Network of sourcing partners. We created an award-winning sourcing model—Cō-Impact Sourcing®—to source the best and help the most.

Responsible sourcing blesses the lives of the growers and harvesters from whom we source dōTERRA essential oils. It also makes a difference for you. When we say our intention is to enrich every life we touch, we mean every life—from our planting and harvesting partners to the individuals and families who use our essential oils in their homes. It's why we pursue what's pure.

The dōTERRA Impact

At dōTERRA, we source the best and help the most. This is a commitment to produce the world's highest-quality essential oils in ways that truly empower the people we work with on the journey from source to you. We do so through our award-winning Co-Impact Sourcing® model.

dōTERRA® essential oils are intentionally sourced to create positive change for the people and communities we work with to produce it. Our 26 High Impact Oils have the biggest impact on the most people.

What Are Essential Oils?

The Power of the Entire Earth in One Bottle

On the 196,900,000 square miles of the earth's surface, scientists estimate there are 390,000 plants—with new species being discovered regularly. Unseen by the naked eye, essential oils hide in the seeds, stems, roots, barks, flowers, needles, and fruits of plants.

Essential oils are typically found in microscopic, specialized glands within certain plants. Scientifically speaking, essential oils are small organic molecules that quickly change from a liquid to a gas at room temperature. That's what makes bottled essential oils so powerful. Your bottle contains tiny molecules in a liquid state. When you unscrew the cap and open it, the molecules change swiftly from a liquid to a gas, which is why you can smell the essential oil immediately—even from a distance.

Natural Solutions for Modern Problems

Essential oils have become increasingly popular and commonplace recently. However, their use dates back to ancient Egypt, Greece, and Rome, among other places. Essential oils aren't just a fad or new trend. They're powerful plant extracts that can be used to promote well-being—just as they have for centuries. Today, millions of people have made essential oils part of their homes because these gifts of the earth provide a natural way to make everyday life easier.

CPTG®

CPTG Certified Pure Tested Grade®

Previously in the world of essential oils, no set standard of quality existed, allowing many companies to cut corners on purity. So we made our own standard: CPTG Certified Pure Tested Grade.

We diligently work with a worldwide network of essential oil chemists, growers, and distillers to select botanicals of the correct species that are grown in ideal environments and harvested at the right times. Once an essential oil is distilled, it must pass a series of rigorous lab tests, layered one on top of the other for a more complete picture—including gas chromatography–mass spectrometry (GCMS). These steps and processes make dōTERRA® essential oils the purest on the market.

Why It Matters

Many oils contain fillers, artificial ingredients, contaminants, or chemical residues. These adulterating elements can cause an oil to lose its efficacy and can even be harmful in some cases.

When you choose to purchase essential oils, you're looking for natural solutions to support your home and family. The CPTG® standard ensures when you order from dōTERRA, you receive pure, unadulterated essential oils that are safe to use on yourself and your loved ones. You should never have to settle for anything less.

Essential Oil Uses

Anyone can benefit from essential oils. Millions of people across the world are passionate about using natural products to support their families and live a healthy lifestyle. When you adhere to product labels, instructions, and warnings, you can confidently bring essential oils into your home.

Essential oils have a long history of safe, effective usage. When you apply a proper amount of pure essential oils, they're absolutely safe for you, your family, and your home. Like anything else you'd bring into your space, essential oils are safe when you adhere to recommended doses and employ them as intended.

There are three basic essential oil application methods: aromatic, topical, and internal. Essential oils can also be used for home care.

Using an essential oil aromatically means experiencing its properties through the air. Aromatic usage typically includes breathing in or inhaling an essential oil, allowing the scent to interact with your senses.

Applying an essential oil topically is a safe, effective way to enjoy the benefits it offers the skin.

Taking an essential oil internally can be done by directly applying it to the tongue or mouth, filling a Veggie Cap, or adding it to food and beverages.

Certain essential oils can be extremely beneficial in the home for daily chores and cleaning. If cleaning and caring for your home with natural, nontoxic ingredients is important to you, then dōTERRA® essential oils can provide a simple, powerful way to keep your home in order.

Look for the following symbols in this guide to help you determine how an essential oil can be used. You'll also notice sensitive skin symbols to help you safely dilute products before applying them topically.

Application Methods

- A Can be used aromatically
- T Can be used topically
- I Can be used internally
- H Can be used for home care

Sensitive Skin

- N Can be used with no dilution (neat)
- S Dilute for young or sensitive skin (sensitive)
- D Dilute before using topically (dilute)

Guidelines for safe usage:

- Labels: Pay attention to any warnings included on essential oil packaging.
- Areas to avoid: Avoid putting essential oils in the nose, inner ears, and eyes or on broken skin or other sensitive areas.
- Dilution: To minimize skin sensitivity, dilute essential oils with a carrier oil. The suggested dilution ratio is one drop of essential oil to five drops of carrier oil.
- Strong essential oils: Always dilute essential oils with a particularly strong chemistry (like Cassia, Cinnamon Bark, Clove, Oregano, and Thyme) before topical application.
- Sun sensitivity: Avoid direct sunlight or UV rays for at least 12 hours after using certain essential oils on the skin that may pose a risk for skin sensitivity (such as citrus oils).
- Safe storage: Store essential oils out of reach of children. Keep them away from excessive light or heat.
- Young children supervision: Always supervise essential oil application with children. Dilute essential oils before applying them to a child's skin.

Where to Begin

Using essential oils is intuitively simple and highly satisfying. However, the many oils available, with their numberless combinations and wellness applications, can be a bit overwhelming to beginners. As a simple first step on your journey with essential oils, we recommend a trio of Lavender, Lemon, and Peppermint. Three of our most popular oils, they will provide you and your family a compelling experience with the life-enhancing properties of essential oils.

ProBiome Support New

Your body's microbiome is like an invisible organ. You're made up of about 70 trillion cells, but less than half of those cells are human! The rest are what's known as your microbiome—a vast, diverse ecosystem of microbes all throughout your body that are essential for your health and wellness. A diverse microbiome is a healthy microbiome. Adults may combine both ProBiome supplements daily for a superior diversity of 43 unique bioactive pre-, pro-, and postbiotics, along with bacteriophages.

Digestive Health

Lifelong health is very much dependent on digestive health. A properly functioning digestive system is not only essential for food-nutrient absorption, but also performs critical immune and detoxification functions in the body. Compromised digestive function can result in energy deficiencies, weakened immunities, weight gain, and gastrointestinal discomfort. The DigestZen® line of digestive health products provides targeted solutions for optimal digestive function and comfort.*
